Service Annual Control of the Contro

The adult illustrated fantasy magazine

June 1981

$2.00

EVEN IN SPACE — THE ULTIMATE ENEMY IS MAN.

SEAN CONNERY in "OUTLAND" PETER BOYLE

FRANCES STERNHAGEN JAMES B.SIKKING KIKA MARKHAM Written and Directed by PETER HYAMS Produced by RICHARD A. ROTH Executive Producer STANLEY O'TOOLE Music by JERRY GOLDSMITH PANAVISION® TECHNICOLOR®

Copyright ©1981 The Ladd Company. All Rights Reserved

A LADD COMPANY RELEASE

OPENS MAY 22 AT A THEATRE NEAR YOU!

Out-of-this-world Science Fiction

Galactic Empires

4192 A Spell for Chameleon; E The Source of Magic: V

Pub. ed. $10.00 NEAGONRIDERS

2543 Dragonflight; Dragonquest; The White Dragon. Comb. pub. ed. $26.85

Master of Hed Heir of Sea and Fire; Harpist in the Wind. Comb. pub. ed.$24.85 novels 2 vols

carryall when vou join lake any 6 fo with membership

How the Science Fiction Book Club Works:

Start with an out-of-this-world offer. When your application for membership is start with an uncertainty successful and the white your application for interiorishing is accepted, you'll receive your choice of any 6 books on this page for only $1 (plus shipping and handling). You may examine them in your home, and if not completely satisfied, return them within 10 days—membership will be cancelled and you'll owe nothing. The FREE carryall will be yours to keep whether or not you remain a member.

About every 4 weeks (14 times a year), we'll send you the Club's bulletin, Things to Come, describing the 2 coming Selections and a variety of Alternate choices. If you want both Selections, you need do nothing; they'll be shipped automatically. If you don't want a Selection, or prefer an Alternate, or no book at all, just fill out the convenient form always provided, and return it to us by the date specified.

We allow you at least 10 days for making your decision. If you do not receive the form in time to respond within 10 days and receive an unwanted Selection, you may return it at our expense. As a member you need take only 4 Selections or Alternates during the coming year. You may resign any time thereafter or remain a member as long as you wish. One of the 2 Selections each month is only $2.98. Other Selections are slightly higher but always much less than hardcover Publishers' Editions. A shipping and handling charge is added to all shipments. Send no money now, but do mail the coupon today! Note: Prices shown are publishers' edition prices.

Explicit scenes and language may be offensive to some. Ltd. (LFL) 1980

The Science Fiction Book Club Dept. CR-002, Garden City, N.Y. 11530

I want the best SF in or out of this world! Please accept my application for membership in the Science Fiction Book Club. Send me the 6 books I have numbered in the books below, and bill me just $1 (jus shipping and handling). I agree to the Club Plan as described in this ad. I will take 4 more books at regular flow Club prices in the coming year and may resign any time thereafter. The FREE carryall will be mine to keep whether or not I remain a member. SFBC offers serious works for mature readers.

1.	2.	3.	4.	5.	6.
Mr. Ms.
Address _		7	*	Apt. # _
City			State	- 2	Zip
	perent mus	nt eign	01410

The Science Fiction Book Club offers complete hardbound editions sometimes altered in size to fit special presses and save you even more. Members accepted in U.S.A. and Canada only. Offer slightly different in Canada. 77-5214 CONTENTS

The Bus, by Paul Kirchner, 4, 96

The Richard Corben Interview, by Brad Balfour, 6

Bloodstar,

by Robert E. Howard. Adapted by John Jakes and John Pocsik. Illustrated by Richard Corben, 12

> Tex Arcana, by John Findley, 25

Passions, by John Workman, 31

> The Immortals' Fete, by Enki Bilal, 34

Gallery: Xenopaleontology, by Joel Hagen, 42

Outland, by Jim Steranko, 47

The Mudwogs, by Art Suydam, 52

Valentina, by Guido Crepax, 56

Changes, by Matt Howarth, 65

What Goes Up, by Mark Fisher, 70

> The March Hair, by Caza, 75

Cody Starbuck, by Howard Chaykin, 82

Ri-'vyü-əd, 90

Rock Opera,

by Rod Kierkegaard, Jr., 92

Coming Next Month, 96

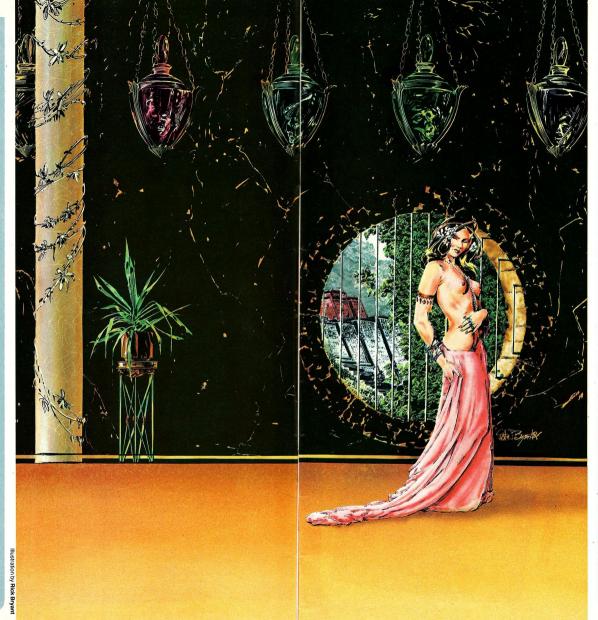

Front cover, The Birdwoman of Zartacla, by Marc Harrison

Back cover, The Bionic Bunny, by James Cherry

"Bloodstar," by Robert E. Howard, illustrated by Richard Corben, ©1975, 1976, 1979, 1980, by the Morning Star Press, Ltd. All rights reserved.

"The March Hair," by Caza, and "The Immortals' Fête," by Bilal, are both from Pilote magazine, @1979, 1980, Dargaud Editeur, France. All rights reserved.

All other copyrights are held by individual artists, agents, and/or representatives.

Editor and Publisher: Leonard Mogel

Executive Editor: Julie Simmons

Contributing Editor: Brad Balfour

Copy Editor: Judith Sonntag

Consultant: Ted White

Art Director: John Workman

Art Assistants: Bill Workman Stephen Vitiello

Joanna Seeton

Production Director: Camille Russo

Production Assistant: Raymond Battaglino

Circulation Director: George S. Agoglia, Sr.

Special Projects: Michael Gross

Foreign Rights Manager: Christina Miner

HEAVY METAL MAGAZINE (USPS 379-970): "Heavy Metal" is a trademark of HM Communications, Inc., ©1981 HM Communications, Inc., 635 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10022. All rights reserved. Nothing may be reprinted in whole or in part without written permission from the publisher. Any similarity to real people and places in fiction and semifiction is purely coincidental.

EDITORIAL INFORMATION: Publisher assumes no responsibility for unsolicited material.

SUBSCRIPTIONS: Published monthly by HM Communications, Inc., 635 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10022. $19.00 paid annual subscription, $32.00 paid two-year subscription, and $39.00 paid three-year subscription in territorial U.S. Additional $3.00 for Canada and $5.00 elsewhere. Second-class postage paid at New York, N.Y., and additional mailing offices.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS: Subscriber, please send change of address to Circulation Manager, Heavy Metal Magazine, 635 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10022. Allow six weeks for change. POSTMASTER: Please mail from 3579 notices to Circulation Manager, Heavy Metal Magazine, 635 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10022.

ADVERTISING OFFICES: New York: Advertising Manager, Heavy Metal Magazine, 635 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10022 (212) 688-4070. Midwest: William H. Sanke, Midwest Advertising Director, 360 N. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, IL 60601, (312) 346-7145. West Coast: Robert Sage, Robert L. Sage & Co., Wilshire Tower Inc., 2811 Wilshire Blvd., Sulte 640, Santa Monica, CA 90403, (213) 829-7381. Southern Offices: H.B. Brown, Brown & Co., Northside Tower, Sulte 407, 6065 Rossell Road, N.E., Allanta, GA 30236, (404) 252-9820.

HM COMMUNICATIONS is a subsidiary of

Chairman Matty Simmons
President Julian L. Weber
Chairman of the Executive Committee
Leonard Mogel
Executive Vice-President Gearda L. Taylor
Sr. Vice-President George S. Agoglia, Sr.
Vice-President, Flanace Peter Philips
Vice-President, Flanace Peter Philips
Vice-President, Flanace Peter Philips
Vice-President, Subscriptions and Product Sales
Howard Jurofsky

Controller Edward Fox

the bus

PAUL KIRCHNER®

HEY MAN... HOW ABOUT A NICE DREAM CONE?

NICE DREAMS

...it might melt your mind!

COLUMBIA PICTURES PRESENTS A C.&C. BROWN PRODUCTION

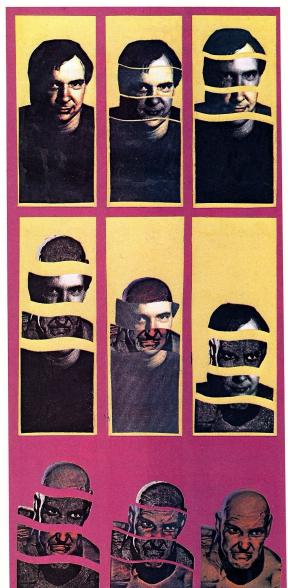

"CHEECH & CHONG'S NICE DREAMS"
STARRING CHEECH MARIN & THOMAS CHONG

and STACY KEACH as Sergeant Shrager

WRITTEN BY THOMAS CHONG & RICHARD CHEECH MARIN ASSOCIATE PRODUCER SHELBY FIDDIS PRODUCED BY HOWARD BROWN DIRECTED BY THOMAS CHONG

Coming this summer to selected theatres.

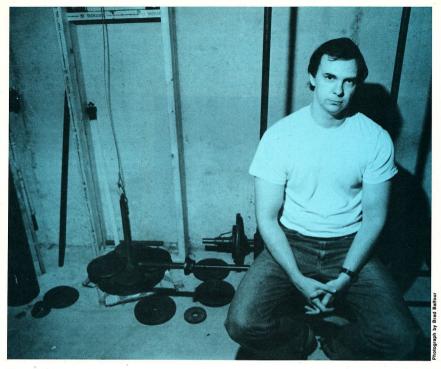

Q: What do you think of people who say, "This guy Richard Corben has just got to be perverse!"?

A: They're full of shit!

RICHARD CORBEN INTERVIEW

by Brad Balfour

Art by Henry Benvenuti

The story is classic: quiet introvert creates wondrous worlds of heroism and bowerful fantasy. At least, that's how the facts read on the surface, like something out of Robert E. Howard's history or the biography of that repressed Victorian H.P. Lovecraft. The archetypal myth of the fantasist (exemplified as well in the lives of Aubrey Beardsley, Edgar Allan Poe, and to a lesser degree, Edgar Rice Burroughs) as the unactualized adventurer resides also in Richard Corben's history. But his evolution, from spending an isolated rural childhood to being a numbingly quiet persona as an animator at Calvin Studios in Kansas City. Missouri, contains the kernel of something other than mere repetition of the myths. Maybe it was a matter of the sixties pop-culture explosion or McLuhan's cool media methodology or Andy Warhol's prescient "In the future everybody will be famous for fifteen minutes"; but Richard Corben wasn't meant to wallow in cultdom or rest within the cocoon of comfortable obscurity. Nor is Corben doomed to the niche of the mediocre lightweight (as was E. R. Burroughs). Already a visual superstar internationally-and something of a mystery man by virtue of his silence—Corben stands to step further into the limelight through the animated power of the Heavy Metal movie and its version of Corben's quintessentially heroic tale Den. What has really removed Corben from the vale of mediocrity is a sense of irony. For Corben, crafting the Platonic ideal of hero seemed out of place with the era of his growing up (he was born in 1940) — the post-Hiroshima age. No simple heroic buffoon made of tendon and raw muscle completes the Corben story; the Corben hero's magnificent musculature is born of a love of the grotesque. And Corben's lush, almost blindingly bright color sense seems to originate in psychedelia, though he has steadfastly maintained a nearly drug-free history. Even his own reality of being a husband, family man, and householder in a Kansas City suburb-all of it a cloak of conventionality-seems almost a self-conscious construct, so that he avoids drifting down the chasm of the modern comic-book-creator myth. Now, at forty, he grows further away from ever being trapped within the person of the mousy man obsessed by his own heroic creations: through a body-building bench press and his own ambition for further creative outlets Corben continues to grow. Even if he dwells within, or rather, somewhere between, his mythos and his realities, then he's now willingly open about it.

BB: In all the artists I've met, there's this driven quality—a strong obsessiveness. I see that in you; what's the source of that obsession?

RC: I know I'm obsessed, but I don't know what the root of it is.

BB: I think it was Jean-Pierre Dionnet who said in Zoom magazine that you were obsessed by sex, death, and violence.
RC: All humanity is.

BB: I guess. But you confront it more directly than a lot of humanity does.

RC: I'd say with average people it's on their mind, but it's hidden way back. They don't want to think about it. I try and come to terms with it in some way that is not quite so horrible as it could be, or in some way that offers resolution. I would say, in a good way.

BB: Why do you think Richard Corben is oblessed with this power to illuminate, or with something that just sets you off from others and makes you seek judgment directly?

RC: Well, maybe God touched me (that's a joke).

BB: Okay...why do you think people are attracted to your work?

RC: I believe it's the characterizations. I make strong characters and I'm good with figure drawing too. Even though some people think I exaggerate figures and characters both, that's part of my style. They see it first as a realistic drawing. Then when they see the exaggerations they don't like it anymore. That's the point of the drawing, the emphasis

If you see a person with a long nose, I'll draw him with a slightly longer nose, to emphasize it. If a hero is muscular, I'll make him more muscular. I emphasize things that atthese women with huge, enormous breasts!" Why do you do that?

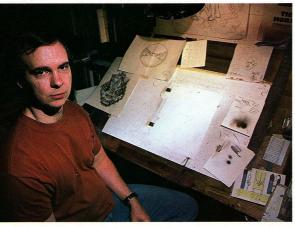

RC: To differentiate them from the men, of BB: Are you fascinated by big breasts? I

RC: I was, at a time, and now it's just another aspect of a stereotype.

really want to know for sure.

BB: When you were a kid, did you masturbate over big breasts?

tract me, or the essence of them. I see things vividly and that's the way I make them. In literature, people may get different images from reading the same story, but in a comic story, it's concrete-that's the way it is BB: Why do you think people are attracted to comics?

RC: It's a narrative form, but it's much easier to read than literature. It's simple, so it takes less effort; you're relying on someone else's vision, so you have to do less work to get through it.

BB: That sounds terrible! But the effect of your work is something more than just that: like that of a superrealist painter it's so real, it reveals something else, much more than obvious reality. Is it stuff from the inner psyche-things you're attracted to, maybe? -hidden homosexual or S&M tendencies?

RC: I'm not worried about them.

BB: What do you think of people who say, "This guy Richard Corben has just got to be real perverse!"?

RC: They're full of shit!

BB: Look at the way you exaggerate the male figure. Don't you think there's a sort of subtle homosexual implication in that?

RC: I just emphasize the primary sexual characteristics, and the same thing with the women.

BB: So now people would say, "This guy has to be awfully perverse. He always draws RC: I wasn't interested in Playboy or Oui. BB: Do you think your work is erotic?

RC: Sometimes—maybe sensual.

BB: Would you want to do some work that is purely sensual?

RC: Someday, in the future.

BB: What do you think of somebody masturbating over your work? Do you think that's a possibility?

RC: What they do by themselves is their business.

BB: I bet you've never been asked that question. RC: No!

BB: I met your wife. She looks like a nice lady, typical human being. She doesn't have huge breasts. What does that reveal about your psychosexual interests?

RC: I don't know.

BB: So why are you so obsessed with sex? RC: Because it was repressed in me somehow, I guess.

BB: So what insidious feelings are pent up in there?

RC: I'm a sex maniac.

BB: Oh, yeah? Let's hear about this!

RC: Well, never mind! That's much too involved for now.

BB: It's a curious thing to be a sex maniac as you have described yourself and to have been married for so long.

RC: Obviously I'm talking only on the fantasy level; it's the impetus for the force in my work, but it's all mental, not real. Otherwise it would cause me to be self-pitving.

BB: So, in reality, you don't want to be a sex maniac-or haven't been.

RC: I just want to be a stud! That's one of the sources of my popularity, because I believe that all young men and teenagers feel their goal is to be a stud, and that's sort of visualized for them. BB: Do you feel you're a teenager at heart? RC: Yes. Constantly—always youth! I want to be a youth forever and then die! Once you pass your maturity or you've reached the point where you're fully grown, fully formed, and fully a person, you're on a downhill slide. Physically, things seem to fall apart. Even in the thirties things start slowing down; you're not as agile, not as fast, not able to learn as quickly. That's something you can find out only when you reach that point. You can tell people that, but they don't believe it until it happens. And then you find out only by pushing yourself after you're mature.

BB: Do you think your work is adolescent? RC: There's a level of it that is, I believe.

BB: All of your male characters, no matter how old they are in body, have young faces like you.

RC: Yes. The main characters usually are vouthful. As my idols change, as I grow older, perhaps the people I draw will start to change too. We're all constantly changing, and this inevitably shows in the work. I'm not exactly sure in what ways, though the new Den probably reflects it.

BB: In some ways the original Den and Kath weren't real, separate characters but were fantasy embodiments of Den/Corbenone seemed the male dream ideal and the other, the desired fantasy ideal. Before, Bloodstar seemed the most realistic of all your characters. Now are the characters more three-dimensional?

RC: When they were created they were pretty artificially done. They were growing in my mind, and it's reflected in the way the stories are going. They are becoming more rounded. I would say at a certain point it was Bloodstar. But I believe Den has developed to where he is more real. I'll give you a clue. Den and Kath split. Whenever in a series a main character falls in love and gets married, they have to kill the woman off or something. In this case, Kath doesn't get killed, she just gets bored.

BB: So Den turns out to be boring.

RC: You see, they have different outlooks on life.

BB: Do you think it reflects a changing Richard Corben?

RC: Probably.

BB: I think you've been able to grow because your marriage stabilized your sexual energy so that it could be redirected into work.

RC: If I weren't married, I would probably be a hermit. BB: I guess finding Donna was in some ways a big help. RC: The thing about youth is even though they are desperate, there's always hope! BB: How old were you when you met Donna?

RC: I was a teenager, probably about seventeen, I imagine.

BB: Was she your first girl friend?

8 HEAVY METAL

RC: I would say she was my first serious girl friend. I had gone out on a few dates but nothing ever came of it.

BB: How old were you when you got

RC: I got married when I was around twenty-two or twenty-three. That means we've been married about seventeen years. (That can't be right!) Donna was still a child when we were married—in her personality. The major stress factors in our marriage occurred because of her growing up and becoming adult. Her goals changed drastically. She wanted to be just a servant at first. She has had to push herself out to be a real person. She has a chip on her shoulder from being repressed.

BB: So, as she developed her independence, getting a job outside the house, leading a life separate from yours, did she resent the female images in your work? How has she reacted to them?

RC: I believe there was a period when she resented the images in my work. She doesn't now. I think she finally has enough self-confidence that they're not threatening.

BB: Doesn't she worry that you'll run around trying to pick up women that look like that?

RC: No, she knows me well enough to know that I don't really desire these women. It's just the way I draw.

BB: So it's a stable marriage. What accounts for that?

RC: Our determination to make it work, I guess. Even though I am sure there were times neither of us thought we were meant for each other, or we lost our romantic notions, we continued on because we felt we had to for our best sake and for a certain length of time as well. And there are other times when it's not bad anyway. I feel a marriage can't last on romantic love, because human personalities are just too volatile. There has to be a sense of responsibility that holds things together.

BB: Do you ever find a conflict between your fantasies and your life's realities? RC: I did at a certain time, until I met with more people and expanded the number of people I knew. I think women are all alike, no matter what they look like.

BB: What do you think of people accusing you of being sexist?

RC: I don't care. So I am!

BB: You feel you are?

RC: What is their definition of a sexist?

BB: Well, your females seem to be stereotypes of female archetypes, both physically and as characters. They're either beautiful, voluntuous sex objects or evil bitches.

RC: That's right, they are. They are, on first appearance. After you read the thing, then the subtleties come through. It works on many levels, broadly, though it may not be so successful on more esoteric levels.

BB: Well, if a symbolism is there, you don't try to be particularly subtle about it.

try to be particularly subtle about it.

RC: When I use a symbol, I do it on purpose and it's not subconscious. The audience doesn't miss it either; it's obvious. If I make a creature with a very long neck, which could be slightly phallic, when I draw it it's very phallic.

BB: What do you find are your favorite symbols?

RC: The circle, the moon, women, and the lion. The circle and moon are both female. The lion is a personal symbol—savage, fierce, usually male, and special to me because my name is Richard, like the Lionhearted, so my animal is supposed to be the lion.

Women who proclaim that men and women are the same are stupid. There is a basic difference between men and women.

There's no way you can get around it; there never will be! Creating a society without the difference is completely artificial and is doomed.

BB: Do you think you're conscious of creating certain sex symbols?

RC: No, because I usually work in a medium with implied continuity, wherein one image is not always before the viewer.

BB: What do you think of certain sex symbols?

RC: They're women and they're people, but when they're up on a poster, that has no meaning to me.

BB: Do you ever regret you don't have more contact with women like your characters?

RC: No, because once you get to know them, they can be just as dumb as ugly ones. I think women who condemn my work because it's sexist haven't even read it. They just look at the pictures and say, "That's sexist." Women who proclaim that men and women are the same are stupid. There is a basic difference between men and women. There's no way you can get around it there never will be! Creating a society without the difference is completely artificial and is doomed.

BB: Are your women strictly sex kittens and your men just big, macho heroes? Or do you feel they are more?

RC: They are to some people, and they are on certain levels. Character is just one small aspect of doing the art. There are many aspects: composition, direction, textures, proportions, and emphasizing characteristics are probably more important to me than to other cartoonists. And, if you see large breasts, you can tell from a great distance if it's a man or a woman.

BB: Do you think that's a problem nowadays? RC: No, but it's the basis of an emphasis!

Like I said earlier, if there is a difference in characters, then I am going to emphasize that difference to the point of absurdity.

BB: Why are some of your women hairless in the crotch? RC: Because I like drawing the forms, and hair destroys form. A form without hair is simpler and slightly bizarre, too.

BB: What do you like about the grotesque? RC: I believe that is something basic in humans. They like anything different that holds their interest. The more different and historical the more interesting it is bizarre, the more interesting it is. BB: But look how much people like to conform to society!

RC: They don't want to be weird themselves: they want to look at other people who are weird.

are weird.

BB: Do you ever want to be endowed as your characters are or be somehow like them?

RC: No. because it's in the role of a drawing, and there is no balance to a drawing, but there is balance to people. For a real person to be like a character in a drawing would be monstrous: not just in the physique, but in the face or anything if it was actually rendered into flesh and bone. It's not real—at least the way I draw it. When I emphasize certain characteristics it's not because I'm following a style or in reaction to a style. it's because I feel it's an emphasis for this particular detail. My idea is to have the fantasy completely realized so that it becomes realistic or so that it would seem real.

BB: By realizing fantasies as completely as you can in this way, you deal with them. You don't need to seek every big-breasted woman in the world. You can, like other red-blooded American males, talk of "hot chicks" but not expect to fuck them. RC: I know that women are more than just to fuck. That's what they rebel against, being objects, and that's why I feel that in the long run, you're just kidding yourself if you use them only that way.

BB: Do you feel your work is cathartic, then?

RC: That word reminds me of an attack an underground cartoonist made against me once. He claimed he was making an attack against me and any other cartoonist who worked in horror and fantasy and science fiction. He claimed fumy comics are cathartic, I claimed horror comics and fantasy comics are cathartic.

BB: Your art seems to be an opportunity for you to express repressed tendencies. What do you figure they are? Violent ones, angry...

RC: That's probably part of it . . . frustration. BB: Frustration about what?

BB: Frustration about what? RC: I never became the way I really wanted

And then, growing up, I never felt adequate.

And then, growing up, I felt it to be very difficult to be a man, and I didn't know how to be a man. And I guess it was like a search to be a man.

BB: If you don't fit a standard role in this world, especially if you had when you were growing up a macho ideal or some sort of confidence, then you either were thought of as a homosexual or a weirdo, and if you weren't a homosexual, you didn't know what place to fit in...

RC: It's like being a hermit.

BB: Did you feel like hiding away?

RC: I did hide.

BB: What other ways?

RC: I'd say repressed emotions. People would probably find me cold and calculating even though I was not, really.

BB: Do you feel that you express yourself now more than you ever have?

RC: In my artwork, ves.

BB: How about verbally?

RC: When I worked at Calvin, they wanted me to give a workshop speech one year. I took it as a challenge and I did it. But that was probably the worst period of my life, preparing for that speech where I had to get up in front of about eight or nine hundred people and make a speech, and that's something I don't care to repeat. It's still difficult.

BB: Why is it so difficult for you? Why do you think you had to turn to comics to express yourself, and specifically to comics and animation?

RC: This is something that happens at a very early age—a disposition for emphasizing one side of the personality. I had a very hard time as a youngster learning verbal communication, and feel it probably spurred me on to the visual. That's the only explanation I could find for it.

BB: Did your parents talk a lot? Was there a lot of talk in the house?

RC: Certainly not in the early days, when we were on the farm where I grew up. If he was out working and she was there alone with just another child...

BB: Was your father particularly harsh or anything like that?

RC: When I was a child, I thought he was, but in retrospect, I think I kind of respect him more than I did at the time. I used to think he was a tyrant then. I see he's not.

BB: You had a lot of conflict with him? Any examples appearing in your work?

RC: I can't think of any offhand. Things that appear in my stories are so changed, so manipulated that it would probably be hard to recognize where they originally came from: and they're probably so different in my mind that I don't even remember where they came from—probably something deep in the id that came out.

RC: Occasionally. My characters aren't intellectual. Usually when they resolve a situation it's not through thinking, it's through some action.

I admire people who are demonstrative sometimes. The time I felt like I could kill somebody, when my anger was a slow build, I stayed up all night, feraming, trying to figure out how I could go to New York, kill him, and come back and get away with it. I was even going so far as to try and figure out all the ways in which I could cover myself with albis.

with ailois.

BB: You feel like taking advantage of such feelings because you're not habitually a person who expresses his anger. When you realized such feelings are there and can be expressed, the realization changed you?

RC: No, I felt that it was down there all along. It just never came up to the surface. I am capable, and probably every person alive is capable, of killing people under the right circumstances; it's just a matter of coming to those circumstances. Other things can lead to aggressive behavior—like going to karate, getting trained there. There is always tension and an attitude constantly there. And Donna will say that also. My character changed during the period when I went to that karate school. I was generally an easygoing person and slowly got angry. After being there for two years, I could be an instant killer.

BB: Were you glad that that aspect of your personality was revealed?

RC: Yes. I don't think it's necessarily bad, either, because it's something for survival. It's learning more about yourself, knowing that you have it in yourself to turn instantly into something like that.

I am capable, and probably every person alive is capable, of killing people under the right circumstances. It's just a matter of coming to those circumstances.

BB: This makes me think of Bloodstar the blend of Robert E. Howard and Richard Corben. Your own Mutant World and other Warren stuff had a similar post-holocaust slant. And Howard was also a weight lifter. Do you feel any kinship with Howard?

RC: I might have been slightly fascinated, but I'm repelled by many of his philosophies. He was a racist as well as being sadomasochistic, and he did use violence for his own sake—for the enjoyment of it. In fact, I wouldn't say he's one of my favorite writers. That's one of the things I felt slightly queasy about—about accepting his job without adapting Valley of the Worm into Bloodstar. None of his characters were human to me. They were just brutes and I felt that if I were to do anything with it, I would have turned them into human beings.

BB: The story ends on a Corben note—a mixture of the tragic and the moral.

RC: I believe a fairy-tale happy ending is a false myth. We can hope for good things, but we can't hope for that.

BB: Do you believe in innocence? It's there in characters from your earlier stories.

RC: I don't believe there's a pure innocence. A person could be innocent in murdering a person, but he might have thought about it.

BB: You have innocence, and then it gets perverted in certain ways.

RC: I have this painting. It's a self-portrait. It gets older and older as the years go by, but I don't! If there's anything all men deny, that's their own mortality. We're all doomed and put on earth for a while, and then that's it!

BB: But you're not religious.

RC: No.

BB: Is there a guiding morality to your work?

RC: Yes, in that my heroic characters don't hurt people needlessly or kill people needlessly; they're also not thieves.

BB: I think that attitude abounds in your stories: man is alone; man reverts to savagery; the individual will survive in spite of all these things; civilization might even be a veneer. RC: I feel it's true. I feel that it's barely underneath the surface; there are still BB: Let's face it, your work is not inherently optimistic.

RC: The message in my work is that the individuals will survive no matter what. If the modern world destroys itself, there will still be a somebody left to be fully developed and live a full life.

BB: Do you feel that we are verging on a holocaust? Because you deal with that image so much.

RC: I don't know if it will be an instant holocaust. I believe we are courting disaster in many ways. I don't know if it will happen in a flash or if it will happen slowly. BB: I wonder, would you prefer that world to this kind of civilized world, in a certain sense? RC: It would be simpler in some ways. Still, the post-holocaust world is doomed, with all the residual radioactivity around. It's not a place where you can live a long life. BB: People have said you're a right-winger or that there's right-wing politics in your work, with your individualists and moralists and the sexist thing. RC: Many people might think I'm conservative or a right-winger, but then when you talk to somebody who is a right-winger, you would probably think I'm liberal.

BB: Why would somebody think you're right-wing? RC: Because my characters are not rebels and they don't want chaos; they know that there have to be rules to follow.

BB: Yet you use images that are crazy and violent and disruptive. RC: You have to be specific—it may be something related to crumbling worlds.

BB: In certain ways, rampant violence.

RC: It's something to react against.

BB: Do you portray violence so graphically because there's something to be said by that imagery?

RC: There's all kinds of violence I portray.

It's only graphic in a stylized way. To portray the pain is impossible. It takes some imagination on the viewer's part. It might require more exaggeration, more distortion, more abstractions than I put into the stuff.

BB: What if somebody says your work is violent and pornographic?

RC: That's their opinion.

BB: It glorifies violence, it degrades the human by dwelling on violence.

RC: My characters are never violent for the sake of being violent. It's always forced on them or is a means to an important end.

BB: What ends do you think are important?

RC: Survival and protecting things you love, I imagine.

BB: If your family were in danger, what would you do? How would you react? You're basically a passive person.

RC: I'd kill them on the spot!

BB: Do you think you'd be able to respond in that way?

RC: Yes, I always knew there was one part of me that could turn like a sword or be violent in an instant.

BB: I can't imagine you getting into an argument!

RC: The trouble is when I argue, not only am I arguing with the other person, I'm arguing with myself.

BB: Your work appears to be controlled. What gets Richard Corben out of control, out of order? You don't get high, you don't drink. What gets you nuts?

RC: I believe I was leading into something like a change of attitude when I was training at karate school. If someone cut me off during that period, I wanted to chase him down. That's repressed in me, that flying off the BB: Do you ever fight with your wife?

RC: No, I don't raise my voice. If I were to raise my voice, I might become violent.

BB: Do you feel your work causes people to become insensitive to violence because it so glories in violence?

RC: There's something deep in the human id that is both fascinated and repelled by violence. Violence is so much a part of human existence, there's no getting away from it. Even being born and dying.

BB: Do you think those are violent experiences, being born and dying?

RC: Dying often is. Birth is sometimes violent for the mother and has a lot of discomfort.

BB: How does Beth, your daughter, react to the violence and sexuality in your work? RC: I sheltered Beth from the more violent things, the more explicit sexual stuff.

BB: At what age do you think censorship for kids should end?

RC: When they seem mature.

BB: So you don't have any objection to premarital sex?

RC: No.

BB: Can you see yourself as an advocate of sexual freedom?

RC: I'm an advocate of freedom. That might be included in it.

BB: What do you feel about the repression of sex in America?

RC: It's all right to repress sex among children. It's not all right in adults. They should be able to look at anything they want, within reason, as long as they're not hurting anybody.

BB: It's almost incredible the way people repress sexuality in this country. I think it creates more sexual problems than it solves. It seems criminal how comic books reinforce a repressive mentality.

RC: You can't fight 'em. You can't win by logic-it's not logical. It's just something you have to put up with, or what you can do is sidestep some way...

BB: Now Reagan and all those people have got power and these right-wingers for Christ are saying, "We want a moral country!" You'd be one of those likely to go to the camps, as a sexual outlaw.

RC: I wouldn't be very happy about that. BB: What would you do? How would you RC: If I were an outlaw, I would consider going to another country.

BB: Do you feel there's an outlaw element to your work or that you create outlaw characters? What characteristics align your most significant creations?

RC: They are solitary people, generally introverted, not parts of gangs, not really that sociable; but they are introspective.

BB: Maybe "outlaw" isn't the right word; maybe the right word is "individualist."

RC: I think individualists are responsible for all the great discoveries on earth. All the great scientists or artists are great individuals. BB: Have there been particularly influential individualists in your life?

RC: There are some artists and people: Einstein, Maxfield Parrish-because he painted the way he lived and the way he wanted. I'd say that because he was an illustrator but was so successful at it, he could just go off and do what he wanted.

There's a fellow who's a friend of mine who worked at Calvin. He's about five or six years younger than I am, and I admire him for his drive and the things he's accomplished, even though I feel I have a greater talent. He has accomplished a lot because he's more aggressive and outgoing than I am, and I admire him for that.

BB: What political movement or specific issue reflects your individualist slant?

RC: The antinuclear movement. I feel the so-called engineers and scientists have this superior attitude that they know everything. And I feel they don't know anything. Our environment consists of a very complex formula, and they have many of the items in the formula, but they don't have all of them, because it's an inhuman operation. People run the thing but they don't know what they're creating. It's a self-perpetuating monster!

BB: In earlier work, in the undergrounds, a lot of stories end fatalistically. The bad guys are often corporate people, the capitalists. You definitely have an anticorporate bias.

RC: To me, the individual is everything. Everything that's important has come from us because we're individuals as opposed to committee! I was impressed by Walt Disney. He was a great individual. He created an empire and became powerful. His corporation became overpossessive about their properties. They've got so much money but they're worried about cartoonists ripping them off in some way.

BB: Do you aspire to founding the Richard Corben empire? RC: Just in a small way; I want just a small empire.

BB: What's your notion of a small empire? RC: I want a publishing house. I would like to have enough money to do various things that I want to pursue. I want to pursue my sculptures, my movies, paintings, body building, and so on.

BB: Will you ever draw a character with small breasts?

RC: Maybe if you twisted my arm.

CREATORS' COMMENTS ON CORBEN

JACK KIRBY: Creator of Marvel's Fantastic Four, Thor, and others.

He's a hard worker, someone in search of a hero. While his hero is a Conan type—one with a lot of muscle but not a modern-type superman-Corben is his own opposite. He'll never function that way but would like to; I'll never be an acrobat, but most of my main heroes are. I don't think Corben would create another heroic image if he could; this one fulfills his particular fantasy perfectly.

MOEBIUS: France's foremost cartoonist.

a free and beautiful way. He's not afraid to show it: he's completely free and shows sex organs as they naturally are. He may be one of the first artists to do so commercially and is certainly one of the strongest. His work is erotic but not in the traditional way—there's much as it is. He uses style but is not overstylized, at least not as traditional eroticism is—unless you speak in the Grecian sense. He dreams of human anatomy, very beautiful with lots of control. And I love his personality. Nobody knows him; he is a mystery. Yet through his drawings we are very

CONTINUED NEXT ISSUE

ROBERT E. HOWARD'S BLOODSTAR

BY RICHARD CORBEN. JOHN JAKES. AND JOHN POCSIK In search of Helva and little Bloodstar, Grom and Bloodstar came upon a group of ravaged Aesirians, apparently killed by the demon that haunts the valley. They set up a trap to lure the sinister serpent Satha, and Bloodstar offered himself as ball, to avenge his former comrades.

THE GIANT SERPENT'S WRITHINGS FINALLY QUIETED. CAREFULLY, BLOODSTAR CUT OPEN THE POISON SACS AT THE BASE OF THE GREAT FANGS.

DUSK WAS FALLING WHEN WE STARTED BACK OVER THE TANGLED HILLS TOWARD THE VALLEY OF THOSE FORBIDDEN RUINS.

LATER, AS I FOUND, EVEN AS BLOODSTAR AND I WERE HURRYING THROUGH THE STEAMING NIGHT, TWO OTHER FIGURES HAD REACHED THE DEVASTATED VILLAGE.

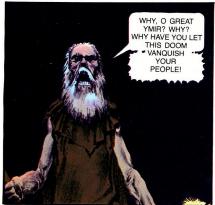

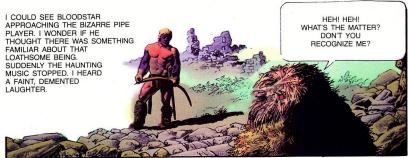

YES, HELVA!
SHE WOULD HAVE BEEN
MINE. BUT SHE WAS
NAUGHTY AND RAN OFF WITH A MANGY DOG! HEE! HEE! HEE!
SO I HAD TO PUNISH HER...
SHALL I TELL YOU
HOW LONG IT TOOK FOR HER TO DIE?

YOU WERE BAD TOO, BLOODSTAR! YOU DISOBEYED THE CHIEF OF THE AESIR...

I COULD FEEL THE FIRE OF HIS RAGE AS BLOODSTAR HURLED HIMSELF FORWARD.

THE GHASTLY GRIN VANISHED FROM LOKNAR'S FACE. HE WAS JERKED TO HIS FEET AS IF PULLED ERECT BY A ROPE. HIS BODY TWITCHING, LOKNAR RAISED THE PIPES AGAIN TO HIS SORE-FESTOONED LIPS.

THE ARROW HISSED THROUGH THE AIR INTO LOKNAR'S ROTTING CHEST.

HE WENT DOWN AS IF STRUCK BY A LIGHTNING BOLT.

BUT THOUGH THE PIPES FLEW FROM HIS LEPROUS FINGERS, THAT GHASTLY PIPING CONTINUED.

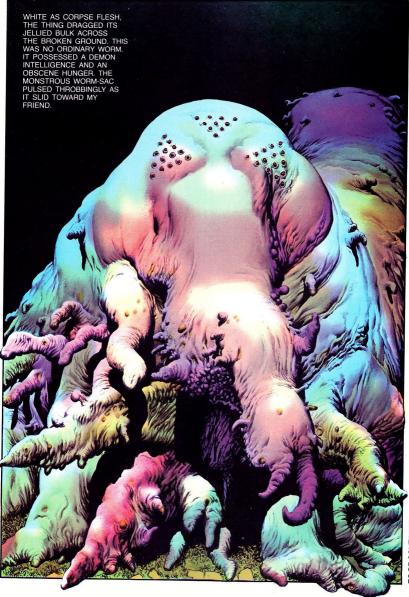

22 HEAVY METAL

TO BE CONTINUED

The Heavy Metal Bookshelf: erse of Fantasy

SPECIAL! NOW $3.50

PRICE $6.95

SPECIAL! NOW ORIGINAL PRICE $4.95 $2.50

Ulysses

Art and text by Lob and Pichard. The brave Ulysses pits his strength against gods and goddesses as he travels across the universe.

Conquering Armies The dream epic of fierce horsemen who never lost a battle and never won a war, from Heavy Metal Magazine.

SPECIAL! NOW $3.95

PRICE $7.95

ORIGINAL PRICE $3.95

SPECIAL! NOW $1.95

The Book of Alien

by Paul Scanlon. Designed by Michael Gross Contains over 100 sketches, behind-thescenes photos, interviews, and commentaries from the Twentieth Century Fox thriller.

Psychorock

Five stories by Sergio Macedo that have made him a cult figure wherever people have seen the sky rip open to the sounds of punk rock.

SPECIAL! NOW $2.95

PRICE $5.95

Is Man Good?

So Beautiful and So Dangerous by Angus McKie

ORIGINAL $6.95

SPECIAL! NOW $3.50

Universe," and the utterly grotesque title

ORIGINAL PRICE

The existential SF comic story of an oddball collection of intergalactic hitchhikers-drawn in detail by Angus McKie.

SPECIAL! NOW $3.95

$7 95

ORIGINAL

ORIGINAL $8 95

SPECIAL! NOW $3.95

New Tales of the Arabian Nights

by Richard Corben and Jan Strnad. The ancient tales, including Sindbad the Sailor, are retold in new, exciting and bawdy adventures.

More Than Human

Theodore Sturgeon's SF classic, now in bold graphic style, deals with the formation of a superhuman by the synthesis of six different and complex personalities.

SPECIAL! NOW $1.95

15

$

ORIGINAL PRICE

SPECIAL! NOW $2.95

Alien: The Illustrated Story

by Walter Simonson and Archie Goodwin Based on the Twentieth Century Fox hit, the crew of the Nostromo grapples with a terrifying life force they can't leash or comprehend-the Alien!

Barbarella The Moon Child

The first feminine fantasy figure returns to challenge the universe. Drawn by originator Jean-Claude Forest, the book also includes action stills from the film Barbarella starring Jane Fonda

Heavy Metal Books, Dept. 681 635 Madison Avenue NY. NY 10022

Please send me Heavy Metal books as indicated below. I have enclosed a check or money order payable to Heavy Metal Books. I have included 75¢ for postage and handling of each book.

Hysses copies at $3.50 each The Book of Alien. copies at $3.95 each.

s iviai	n 600a	·			copies
2.95	each.
MA	Talec	of	the	Arabian	Might

New Tales of the Arabian Nights. copies at $3.95 each. Alien: The Illustrated Story. copies at $1.95 each.

copies at $2.50 each. Psychorock. conies at $1.95 each. So Beautiful and So Dangerous.

_copies at $3.50 each.

Conquering Armies.

More Than Human.__ conies at $3.95 each. Barbarella The Moon Child. copies at $2.95 each. (New York State residents, please add applicable sales tax.)

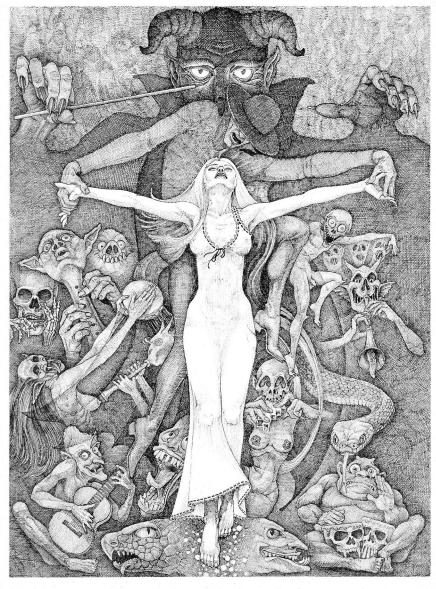

Name Address City State Zip WELCOME AGAIN DEAR READER. TO THE OLD WEST, CAST YOUR THOUGHTS BACK, IF YOU WILL, TO OUR LAST EPISODE AND TRY TO SUPPRESS A SHUDDER AT THE MEMORY OF SADIE'S FEARSOME SECOND ENCOUNTER. WITH THE STRANGER, RECALL TOO, THAT WE FINALIN MET TEX ARCANA AND HIS COMPANION, THE BRIGMATIC WOMAN IN WHITE WHO SPEAKS, STRANGE-YET NOT TOO FOREIGN-LANGUAGE AAD WHO BECAME EXERCISED OVER THE RING THAT DOC GOT FROM ADIE (VAN) GOT IT FROM THE TRANGES; AND THAT'S NOT ALL SADIE GOT FROM THE STRANGER, RENEMBER), LET US RETURN, NOW, TO THE MERCTOFORE QUIET VILLAGE OF HANGMAN'S CORNERS, TO A SCENE OF DISASTROUS DISARRAY, AT MARIA CONQUESS'S PLACE.

TEXARCANA

AND, AS THE DISCERNING READER WILL HAVE GUESSED, SADIE DOES, INDEED, NEED SOME CHECKING ON ...

26 HEAVY METAL

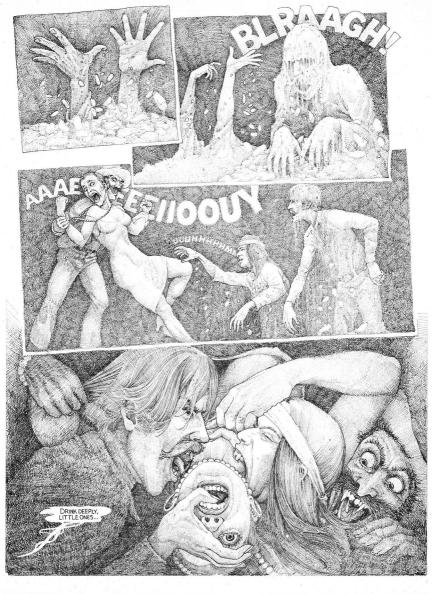

AND, SEVERAL MILES WEST OF TOWN, IN A CAVERN...IN A CANYON....

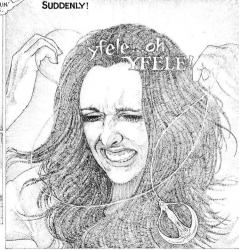

"YFELE"EH? HM! WELL... MUST BE SOMETHING ABOUT THIS "YFELE" THAT MARKES IT DIFFICULT TO MAINTAIN A CALL EXTERIOR. PROBABLY HAS SOMETHING TO DO WITH THOSE FOLKS DOWN IT HE CAYERN... INTHIC CANYON, OR, PERHAPS IT RECALLS SOMETHING FROM THE MISTY, HALF-REMEMBERED PAST... HALF ON KNOWS? COLLD BE WE'LL FIND THE ANSWER IN THE NEXT EPISODE. COULD BE WE WON'T.

IT WAS THE PRIEST, A GNARLED WALKING STICK IN HIS HAND. "THE OLD-TIME BOOKS," HE SNARLED, "ARE INHERENTLY EVIL. YOU KNOW THEY MUST BE EXORCISED...OR DESTROYED. THEY AROUSE...

"ONLY THOSE WHO ARE CLOSE TO GOD MAY FACE THOSE FOUL WORDS WITHOUT FALLING UNDER THEIR INFLUENCE... BECOMING SLAVES OF THESE

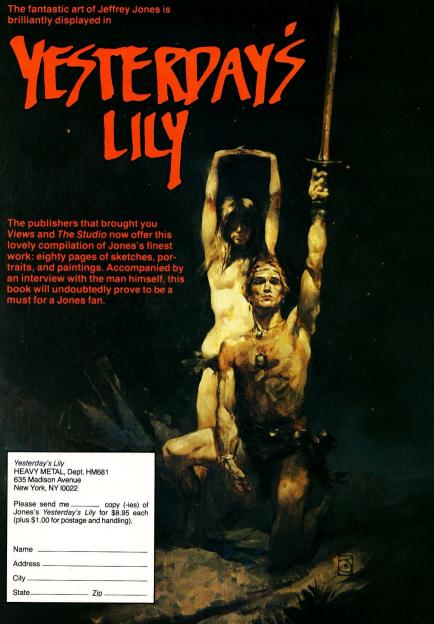

JON ARBIT SMILED AND LED HER TOWARD THE WOODS. "WE'LL RETRIEVE JENNY TONIGHT," HE SAID SIMPLY. "WE CAN TRAVEL A LITTLE FARTHER WEST. WE'LL EXPLORE... HAVE FUN... READ LOTS

HIS STORY IS DEDICATED TO THE MEMORY OF EDGAR PAYGRORY.

THE IMMORTALS' FETE

NOW, JOIN US, DEAR READER, AS WE OBSERVE THE PYRAMID OWELLERS, HOVERING ABOVE THE ASTROPORT

LET'S GO OVER THIS AGAIN I RE-FLISE TO BLEED THE ECONOMY WITH-OUT SENIOR REWARDED! I AM READY TO GIVE YOU ALL THE FLIEL YOU NEED, AT A GEFAT LOSS TO ME, BY THE WAY, BUT ON ONE CONDITION THAT IS, YOU SIVE ME MIMORTALTY PER CONTRA... THE FLIEL MAS GENERAL A GARTY, THE FLIEL MAS GENERAL A GARTY, YOU WON'T LOSE OUT IN THIS YOU WON'T LOSE OUT IN THIS YOU ALL SELIEVE ME.

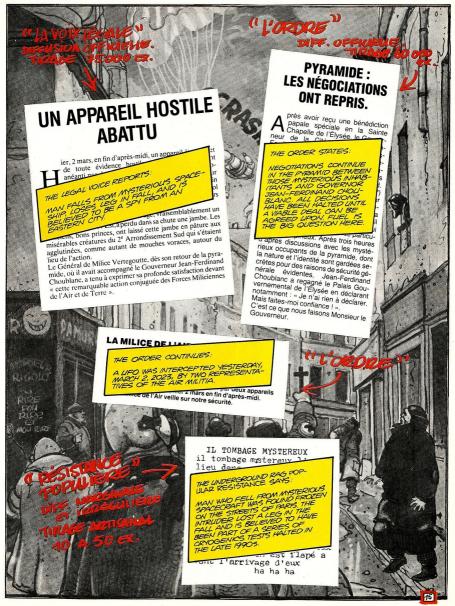

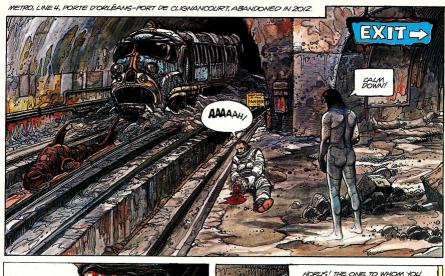

looking into this (and are terribly confused).

Last we saw, the Parisian government was contemplating war, in order to stabilize the city's income. Their decision was instigated by a group of aliens seen hovering over the city in a stone pyramid. The intruders intended to steal the local fuel reserves. Meanwhile, an antiquated space capsule, equipped with some sort of odd cryogenics gear, dropped a frozen man onto a city street. The gendarmerie are

I LINDERSTAND YOUR CON-FUSION AND HAVE TAKEN YOUR INTELLECTUAL LIMITS INTO CONSIDERATION IN THIS INTO CONSIDERATION IN THIS MATTER, NIKOPOL. I BELIEVE THAT YOU CAN THANK ME FOR TAKING YOU IN MY FOX TAKING YOLI IN MY CHARGE-ME, HORLIS, GOD OF HIERAKONOPOLIS, SON OF ISIS AND OSIRIS, POW-ERFUL AND UNIVERSAL CREATOR...

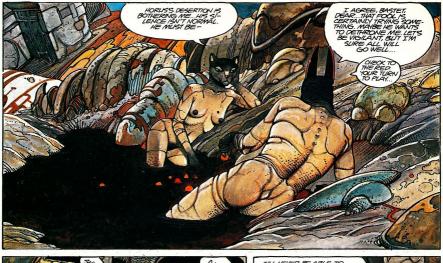

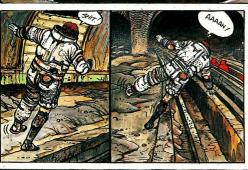

NO, HORUS OF HIERA-KONOPOLIS 19XIT JOK-KONOPOLIS 19XIT JOK-THE MOST OF SERVING TO THE MOST OF SERVING TO AND AMBITION, HE IS GETTING HIMSELF READY TO UNICASH A PARTICIPACT LEAB-OF WENGEANCE... OF WENGEANCE...

IT WAS AT THIS TIME, THE THIRD OF MARCH 2023, AT THE ALÉSIA STATION, THAT THE ABDUCTING OF THE BODY OF ALCIDE NIKOPOL BY HORUS HIERAKONOPOUS, TOOK PLACE

XENOPALEONTOLOGY

by Joel Hagen

Both archeology and science fiction explore the unknown, in the first case, unknown realities; in the other, unexplored fantasy. My ceramic sculptures are not intended to be pretty, but to be intriguing, xenopale-ontological games as much as art objects. And that is the essence of science fiction for me, an arena for mental gymnastics, not mental escape.

Text excerpts from:

An Introduction to Xenopaleontology: The Study of Ancient Extraterrestrial Life. Interplanetary Council Public Document #3684.18, Milburn, Peters, et al., 2 May 2389.

"The silent grey plateau surrounding the two scientists on Tau Ceti's fourth planet had once been a shallow sea. Now, a cold wind dried their eyes as they bored carefully into the grity rock with compression brushes. The men were xenopaleontologists, scientists studying the ancient life of other worlds. Between them lay a magnificently preserved fossil millions of years old, a Trinda-like skeleton over a meter in length. Could those three delicately articulated appendages be responsible for creating the puzzling ridge and terrace formations peculiar to this strature?"

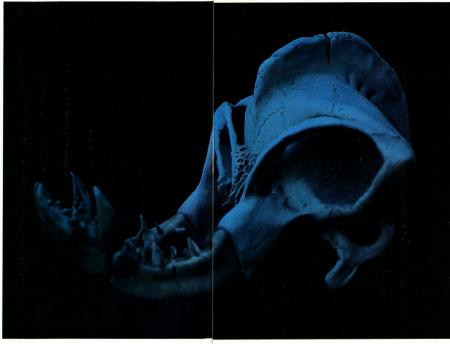

This description of Winston and Henning's discovery of Pliocryptus on Tau Ceti 4 is familiar to every schoolchild. Yet in the twentieth century it would have been looked on as science fiction, with the stigma of condescension attached to it. Xenopale-ontologists are like science-fiction writers. From a small foundation of hard, factual material, they must logically extrapolate a complex structure. In science fiction's early days, writers plied their imaginations to speculate on alien life forms and cultures. They asked themselves basic questions. What life processes might exist on a heavy-gravity planet, a gas giant, in a methane atmosphere? How would humans communicate with an alien intelligence? What concepts might we exchange? And always, who would alien life look like? Drawing on a foundation of available facts, they built up ingenious and entertainingly complex answers to these questions.

Even in reconstructing Earth's own past, paleontologists have had to draw complex conclusions from scanty evidence. Frequently the scientist faced the task of calculating from a fragment of jawbone, for example, not only the type of creature it represented but also its diet, musculature, size, and weight, and even something of its habits and the climate in which it lived. In examining Earth's past, we at least have a basis of familiarity with the life processes responsible for the fossils we explore.

Since several dozen worlds are now known to contain or to have contained life, the problems are greater. Quite often the planet has no surviving biosphere, no living forms from which to draw analogies to fossil remains. Even at best, with the entirety of an unknown fossil well preserved, the xenopaleontologist has no point of reference at which to begin assembly. Did a particular piece function as a head in the creature, or as a pelvis? Did the creature even have body structures analogous to head and pelvis? The scope in the universe of an organism's capacity to capitalize on an energy flux has led to radical departures from terran metabolic processes. The body parts of a xenobiont that persist in fossil form rarely have direct counterparts among earthly species, especially when only scant fragments remain. Even with Kirilian scanners and advanced analytical equipment at his disposal, the xenopaleontologist must rely on his deductive and extrapolative skills and a disciplined imagination in order to begin reconstruction. In essence, this is science fiction in its purest sense.

For decades, the foyer of the Museum of Extraterrestrial Life was dominated by Myxotropes Colanthum, a thirly-meter, magnificently mounted fossil skeleton from Capella's third planet. It consisted of thousands of delicately flattened and curved spinose cylinders. Each was of differentiated calcium-based material, fully vesiculated toward the major diameter. Terminating what was presumed to be the anterior of the creature were numerous heavily ridged interlocking hexagonal plates. Computer sorting established a smooth size and curvature gradient for the bones along bilaterally symmetrical planes. Kirilian scanning confirmed a vital polarity corresponding to this model. Nonpersistent cartilage analogues were presumed as skeletal linking mechanisms, and scientists were thrilled at the first fossil discovery in the universe to rival in size the great whales and sauropods of Earth's past.

Years after the installation of the skeleton at METL, the biologist H. M. Ralston discovered several isolated species of microscopic life in vernal pools of an equatorial region on Capella 3. Something about them nagged at the back of his mind. On a visit to METL it came to him. Two of the species were similar in form to the bones and plates comprising Myxotropes. Mentally rearranging the skeleton, he was sure of his insight. The curved cylindrical bones and the hexagonal plates were remnants of thousands of individual organisms of two species existing as symbiotic shoaling colonies. The entire group had died simultaneously, and the size gradient and isolation had given the impression of its being a single large organism. Careful analysis of the microscopic descendants he had discovered confirmed his theory, and the wonderful "skeleton" was taken down and disarticulated Hoax and illusion are possible because people want to believe in strange and wonderful things. Dawson's superb hoax of the Piltdown man was achieved through a thorough knowledge of paleontology, skillful use of a file on simian teeth, and potassium bichromate to stain the bone convincingly. But it went over as meteorically as it did because a few scientists at the time were passion-mysterious is the lubricant in any bit of misdirection. That passion was strongly behind Beringer's belief in the 1720s that fossils were capricious creations of God for testing man's faith. It blinded him to the ridiculousness of hundreds of plaster "fossils" of star shapes, moons, bugs, trees, and the word God in Latin and Arabic all planted in his excavation by snickering students. Beringer and others accepted them all, and his book of 1726 expounding on their origin was for a time the talk of Europe.

provided. That passion in us for the strange and

In the 1830s, the public drank in Richard Locke's fabrication in the New York Sun about astronomer John Herschel's supposed telescopic finds on the moon. People hailed the discovery of lunar beavers and unicorns, and on the day when flocks of the man-bat, "Vespertilio Homo," were written about, the modest New York Sun surpassed the circulation of any daily paper in the world. All of us share ately seeking just such a missing link as the one he some passion for a glimpse of the "impossible," and the rationalization that science does make mistakes: facts are not inviolable.

In the early exploration of Sirius 5, believed to be a dead world, commercial sale of tons of thermoclastic mineral from exposed strata financed further research. Cheanly processed and cold-molded, the material made a near-perfect insulator even in centimeter thicknesses. When miners at one of the original sites found marginal healing occurring at the perimeter, we realized we had been unwittingly exterminating a unique life form poised in a subtle electromagnetic energy flux. Its metabolism was so slow and so foreign to us that we did not perceive it as life. The organic compounds-amino acids, hydrocarbons-in the material were not normally complex enough to be associated with vital processes. On Sirius 5 we had perceived no visual clues that we were dealing with a life form. There was no mechanical disequilibrium of the organism, and no regular structuring in disconformity to known crystallization patterns. That species on Sirius 5 is now extinct, a scientific tragedy caused by lax scrutiny; we were blinded by the material advantages of an unknown substance.

As an ironic footnote to that tragic incident, similar patches of compound material were found in other regions of the planet. Measurement showed a gradual growth not related to crystallization. Field labs were established, and lengthy observations followed. In this case the material was concluded to be nonvital. We were observing nothing more than a spreading hydration phenomenon on a mineral surface.

operations were performed on people blind since birth. Their perceptions were remarkable when they saw for the first time the world they had thought familiar. One young woman excitedly expressed astonishment that men do not really look like trees. Many wandered about twisting continually to look behind them, unable to grasp that visual space extended beyond their peripheral vision. One man, seeing the room he was in and knowing it to be one of many rooms in the house, still found it inconceivable that the entire house would look big-

outland

Sometime within the last century, man has conquered the frontiers of space. Scientific explorations have been replaced by corporate expeditions to exploit the mineral wealth of distant worlds. One of the prime colonies is lo, the innermost moon of Jupiter. Trapped by the fierce gravitational field of the massive planet, lo is an airless, sulfurous lunar body, ripe for plunder by the star miners. Under the glare of Jupiter's stormy red eye, the gigantic girders and panels of Con-Amalgamate 27 are erected—a vast mining complex, which exists solely to extract precious ore from lo's crust. Energy, air, and room are the three most limited commodities on Con-Am's ledgers, forcing the company's 2,144 personnel to live in spartan, dim, and claustrophobic barracks-their bunks resembling a series of metal animal cages—with privacy and comfort sacrificed to industrial economy. They are fugitives and loners, an army of society's misfits. Enduring hardship and boredom, the men and women of lo live by their own rules. Con-Am provides for every need, from rigid safety standards to clean hookers and wild entertainment. Drawn to lo by desperation and greed, the laborers are anonymous drones, trying to forget their pasts. Their futures are counted by the days until their annual tours of duty end. Now something dark and unexpected is happening to Con-Am 27-something that drives men mad, something that kills them. Federal District Marshal William T. O'Niel has barely begun his assignment as Head of Security when the bizarre deaths attract his attention. He is a hardheaded realist, whose big mouth and abrasive manner have consigned him to one obscure interstellar station after another. His tenacity for justice has branded him a troublemaker, and Con-Am 27 is the dumping ground for noonoformists. Still a good cop, O'Niel senses something sinister about the fatalities on lo, and discovers a suspicious pattern unfolding. He sets out to find the truth behind Con-Am 27's efficient mechanical facade—even if he must sacrifice his wife, his career, and his own life in the process.

Con-Am 27 General Manager Mark B. Sheppard is a coolly calculating opportunist, interested only in profits and his own promotion up the corporate ladder. Since taking over the mine's operations, Sheppard has broken all productivity records. He refuses to act on anything which might interfere with the success of his administration.

Security Deputy Montone has already served a tour of duty on lo, and is resigned to the Security Deputy Montone has already served a tour of duty on lo, and is resigned to the fact that the corporation is more interested in dollars than death statistics. Montone finds himself torn between assisting the new marshal and loyalty to the corporation—until he is drawn into the diabolic mystery of Outland.

Dr. Marian L. Lazarus is the disillusioned company physician, a sarcastic middle-aged woman with a veneer of indifference to the lengthening list of fatalities. She has a wry, biting sense of humor, which she uses to disguise her own sense of inadequacy and failure as a scientist. Although Dr. Lazarus grudgingly respects O'Niel's single-minded code of honor and dedication to duty, she is afraid to join him as an ally.

Carol O'Niel is the marshal's young wife, who can no longer stand the isolation of bleak frontier assignments. Just when her husband needs her support the most, she boards the monthly space shuttle for Earth. She takes along their eleven-year-old son, so that the child can grow and play with friends his own age—away from the solitary, dangerous Outland way of life.

Marshal O'Niel's investigations soon reveal that the mortality rate on lo is higher than anyone has ever admitted—let alone questioned. The corporation is annoyed by the lawman's inquiries: they try bribery, then threats, to stop him. Faced with betrayal by his own security force, and unable to trust anyone in the mining colony, O'Niel refuses to back down. Determined to carry out his job, he continues to probe for lo's deadly secrets, knowing that the hunter has now become the hunted. Before he can reach the authorities, he must face the most murderous conflict of his career. Alone and trapped in the maze-like Con-Am complex, Marshal William T. O'Niel comes to realize that even in space, the ultimate enemy is man.

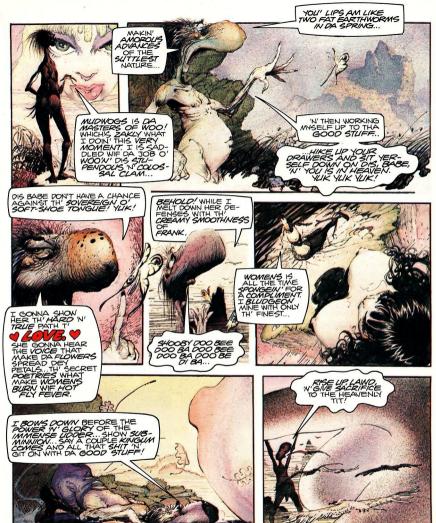

Outland is adapted and illustrated by award-winning author and artist Steranko. Based on the science-fiction thriller film written and directed by Peter Hyams, the graphic story version of Outland will be presented in four full-color installments, each eleven pages in length, beginning in the next issue of Heavy Metal. Outland will showcase Steranko's first comics work since his highly acclaimed Nick Fury and Captain America series for Marvel in the late 1960s, The style and format used in this adaptation are highly experimental, and designed specifically to complement the story.

Outland is a Ladd Company Production, released through Warner Bros.

EARLY IN THE 21 CENTURY, IN A MINING COLONY ON THE SECOND MOON OF JUPITER, "SOMEONE IS GETTING AWAY WITH MURDER."

SPECTACULARLY RECREATED IN THE MOVIE NOVELIM

UTLAND: EVEN IN SPACE, THE ULTIMATE ENEMY IS MAN.

lo, innermost moon of Jupiter... An unforgiving world, a hellhole in space that broils by day and freezes by night under the malignant eve of the Great Red Spot... An outland of the space-age frontier where men mine ore for the needs of Farth

Like the men of the old frontier. the miners of Con-Am 27 are hard men, loners who work and play at a brutal pace. But now, frenzied by some sinister force, they are killing one another and themselves...

To the outland of lo comes a new marshal, a man driven by honor and haunted by failure. A man who will stand alone and forfeit if he must love livelihood and even life itself, to confront and conquer the evil that is engulfing lo.

And so, as it did in Dodge City centuries ago, a classic showdown develops...

OUTLAND: A Sensational $12 Million Film is produced by the Ladd Company, whose executives masterminded the production and extraordinary success of ALIEN and STAR WARS he film stars Sean Connerv and Peter Boyle, and is both written and directed by Peter Hvams, who lists among his other credits as writer/director "Capricorn One," "Hanover Street," and "Busting." It is produced for the Ladd Company by Richard A. Roth, producer of "Summer of '42.

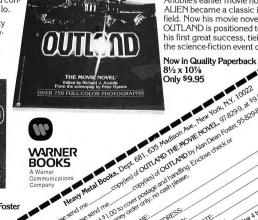

OUTLAND boasts some of the most spectacular and sophisticated special effects ever to appear on the screen. It is filmed in Introvision, an exciting new technique of electronic matting that projects actors onto miniature sets with superrealism. The set of the Jovian mining colony took 80 workers more than three months to complete, and has been described by the Los Angeles Times as "mesmerizing."

OUTLAND: A Spectacular Movie Novel From the Editor of the Bestselling "Alien" Movie Novel.

Combining the stunning visuals of the movie with the riveting storyline of the novel, this original Warner trade paperback recreates the total OUTLAND experience with more than 1,000 full-color photos from the movie, edited from the Peter Hyams script and narrated by Richard J. Anobile.

Anobile's earlier movie novel of ALIEN became a classic in the field. Now his movie novel of OUTLAND is positioned to surpass his first great success, tieing in with the science-fiction event of 1981

Now in Quality Paperback 8½ x 10% police. Deep 631, 655 Madeson Ne. Her Work. Fix. 1002 of 595 each. See of OUT AND THE MOVIE POURL of 1889, 1859 50 884, 1877 5

WARNER

A Warner Communica Company

send rice cover reduced by the property of the send of

Please send me

Now In Paperback Only $2,75

ALAN DEAN FOSTER

Allow 4 to 6 weeks

WARNER BOOKS 1981

Also Available — An Exciting Tie-In Novel From Alan Dean Foster

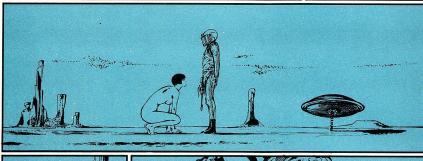

Haunted by her spaceman-lover, Valentina finds it difficult to work, play, or sleep. In a dream, she sees herself, clad in an identical space suit, making love with him, and becomes anxious to find out who he really is. Oh, dear.

58 HEAVY METAL

68 HEAVY METAL

HISTORY BUILDS UPON ITSELF,

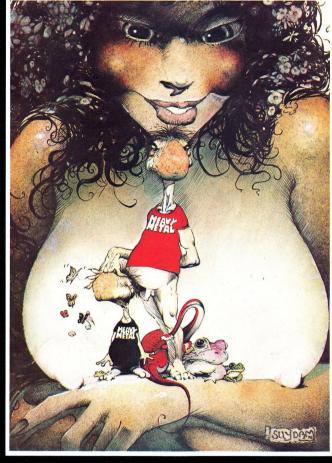

"My men wear HEAVY METAL t-shirts, or they wear nothing at all."

"You're not whistling 'Dixie,' little lady! We only wear the finest form-fitting material, which I feel accentuates my manly physique. Ray here likes the way the colors blend with his ruddy complexion. No matter what you look like, the HEAVY METAL t-shirt (available in red or black) is the message for summer."

and the second	ATT ATT
		SUPPE
HEAVY METAL Dept. HM 681 635 Madison Avenue New York, NY 10022	Black Red
Enclosed please find my check or mor $6.00 (plus 60¢ per shirt for postage	and handling).	HEAVY METAL t-shirt(s) at
Name Address City If you do wish to order, but do not vnecessary info, and enclose it with a	State State wish to cut the coupon in this

MARCH HAIR

BY CAZA

FOR A LONG TIME, I HAD A CREW CLIT AND A SHORT BEARD THAT GAME ME A RATHER
STARK LOOK, WHICH BLENDED IN JUST FINE
WITH MY STYLE AT THE TIME. ONE COLD, WINLET MY HAIR GROW, MERELY TO SEE
WHAT KIND OF LOOK

IT WOULD GIVE ME

AT THE END OF THE SEASON, MY HAIR STARTED IN TAKE ON AN INTERESTING TONE, MOREOVER, I HAD SAVED QUITE A BIT BY NOT GOING TO THE BARBER SHOP ANMORE—SO MUICH THAT, IN FACT, I DECIDED TO KEEP IT UR

IT WAS THEN THAT MY HAIR STARTED TO TURN GREEN. AT FIRST, I DIDN'T GET TOO WORKED UP ABOUT IT. BUT, LITTLE BY LITTLE, THE GREEN GREW THE GREEN GREW ON THE ROOTS, AND BY MIP APRIL I WAS BOASTING A MAGNIFICENT MOP OF LUSH BEAUTIFUL GREEN GRASS, AND, IN HARMON WITH THE SPRING, NO LESS! MY BEAUTIFUL GREEN GRESS! WILL COUR, RECTIONAL COURSES! WILL COURSE WE SHAPE TO STAYED IT SHAPE TO SHAPE T YET, ON THE OTHER TEI, ON THE OTHER HAND, THE REACTIONS OF MY FRIEND'S WERE NOT GOOD. IT BE-CAME TIRESOME...

I TRIED TONS OF SHAMPOOS BUT THERE WAS BUT THERE WAS NOTHING I COULD DO! ON THE CONTRARY, SUCCESSIVE WASHINGS SEEMED TO GIVE IT MORE LIFE! MOTHER NATURE WAS HAVING A FIELD DAY! SO I TRIED TO KEEP TO MYSELF ...

AROUND THE MIDDLE AROUND THE MIDDLE OF MAY I BEGAN TO SPROUT LITTLE BUDS, WHICH QUICKLY OPENED INTO DELICATE COR-OLLAS, A PASTEL ROSE-COLORED FLOWER. THEIR SWEET PERFUME FOLLOWED ME EVERY-WHERE I SPENT HOURS
IN FRONT OF THE MIRROPE SATISFING MY NARCHSTSTING MY
NARCHSTSTING MY NARCHSTSTING HOURS
I WOLLID HAVE BEEN TAKEN BY SWEEZING
FITS, SIMULTANEOUSLY,
MY NOSE RAN LIKE A
FOUNTAIN AND MY EVES
TEARED BUT I HAD DIAGNOSIS WAS VERY (LEAR...

BUT SINCE THE MEDI-CINE CLEARED UP THE COLD, I DIDN'T CUTANY-THING AT ALL! I BEGAN TO GET ATTACHED TO IT. I WAS PROUD OF MY BLOOMING COIF! WHEN SUMMER CAME, I STOPPED TAKING MY MEDICINE: THE SEASON
OF MY ALLERGIES HAD PASSED MY LITTLE FLOWERS CONTINUED TO THRIVE EVERY MORNING, I WATERED THEM GENEROUSLY, WHEN

ING, I WALLERED THEY WISELY CLOSED THEM-EVENING CAME, THEY WISELY CLOSED THEM-SELVES UR. I WAS A LITTLE AFRAID OF CRUSHING THEM ON MY PILLOW WHILE I SLEPT...

IT WAS AT THIS TIME THAT MARGLIERITE ENTRED MY LIFE. AT THE BEGINNING SHE WAS A BIT ASTONISHED BY MY PERPETUAL HAT. BUT A SHE WOLLD MAKE FLN OF MY HEAD OF HAIR! IN FACT ONE HEIRE KNOWS WHAT THE REACTION OF A WOMAN WHO WEARS COLINTRY DRESSES AND HAS A MANE OF BLOND HAIR WILL BE.

I HAD TO TAKE MY HAT OFF WHEN SHE CAME TO MY HOUSE TO SEE MY CARTOON COLLECTION. IT WAS IMPERATIVE; FLOWERS NEED LIGHT, YOU KNOW.

BUT MY FEARS WERE NO NI VAIN: SHE WAS ABSOLUTELY DELIGHTED!
THE NEXT DRAY, SHE MOVED IN, WITH HER COUNTRY DRESSES, AN AWGORA CAT, AND ALL OF PINK FLOYD'S RECORDS.

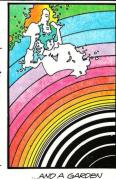

FOR A FEW WEEKS, WE WERE AS HAPPY AS LARKS, ALL THE NEIGHBORS HAD GONE ON VACATION. WE WEST WITO THE FORESTS, TO WALK THE CANAR-

WHILK THE CANARIES, WE BATHED
IN A LITTLE LAKE THAT I'D DISCONERED, AND WE STAYED FOR HOURS, FLIRTING
WITH BACH OTHER
WHILE BUTTERFLIES AND BEES
CAME TO POLLINATE AROUND AND
HEAD. AT NIGHT
WE LISTENED TO RECORDS AND

REMINIDED EACH OTHER OF HOW GOOD IT WOULD BE WHEN WE'D
HAVE A VINE-COV ERED COTTAGE,
WITH A LARGE FIREPLACE...

...AND A GARDEN FILLED WITH FLOWERS.

OBVIOUSUI, WITH ALL THAT, I NEEDED A FULL-TIME JOB! NOW THERE WERE TWO MOUTH'S TO FEED. UNFORTUNATELY, MARGUERITE'S BASKET WEAVING DIDN'T PROVIDE US WITH A

I DRESSED WELL BUT THE MOMENT I TOOK OFF MY HAT, SLAM! TOOK OFF MY HAT, SLAM! AND I ARGLIED, BOY, DID I ARGLIE! "THIS IS IPB! HAIRSTYLES DON'T MAT-THE ANYMORE!" IT WAS ALL IN VAIN! FOR, I WAS TREATED LIKE A CLOWN!, IREA EU LIREA CLOWN, A HIPPE, AND-THE LOW-EST BLOW-A POET! I BEGAN TO DESPAIR. THEN, THE ARRIVAL OF AUTUMN RESOLVED THE PROBLEM: THE FLOW-ERS FELL, THE SPROUTS TURNED BROWN, AND I TOOK ON A FAIRLY NORMAL LOOK AGAIN. PERHAPS FINALLY I WAS GOING TO FIND SOME WORK

AND I DID! WHEN I WENT BACK HOME TO TELL MARGUER-TE THE GOOD NEWS, I FOUND THE HOUSE EMPTY: NO MORE CANARIES, NO MORE ANGORA CAT, NO MORE MAR-GUERITE. SHE HAD LEFT ONLY A NOTE ATTACHED TO OUR FAVORITE PINK FLOYD AL-BLM, SEEMS THAT WHAT SHE LIKED MOST ABOUT ME HAD BEEN THE FLOWERS AND YOU KNOW, I AND YOU KNOW, I DON'T REALLY MISS HER. WHO CAN BE SERIOUS ABOUT A GIRL WHO GETS AT-TACHED TO LITTLE DETAILS LIKE HAT! ALL OF A SUDDEN, I FELT RELIEVED. I NO KELIEVEÖ. I NO LONGER NEEDED WORE AS BADLY. ESPECIALLY BE-CALISE, THIS MORNING.

HOW TO READ A NATIONAL LAMPOON SUBSCRIPTION BLANK... AND HAVE A GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEE IN A SNAPPY UNIFORM VISIT YOUR HOME MONTHLY TO DELIVER 100 PAGES OF LAFFS AND BACKSLAPPERS.

Term of subscription. We list three-year subscriptions first, then two, and then one. What this means is that we are subliminally trying to con you into subscribing to National Lampoon for three years. During this time there is no cancellation. It will keep coming to you no matter what you say and despite the fact that we have insulted the president of your country. You may note, however, that the savings are prodigious. The longer your subscription, the more you save. Ask about our fifty-year layaway subscription plan.

One year. Most people subscribe to National Lampoon for one year. But don't you be cheap. If you want to join the exclusive Three-Year Club, go back to paragraph D.

NOW YOU KNOW HOW TO SUBSCRIBE TO NATIONAL LAMPOON.
IT'S EASY AND CHEAP, DOESN'T HURT,
AND WILL MAKE YOU
DOZENS OF NEW FRIENDS.

US.

place to send your subscription order to if you want National Lampoon. If you want Penthouse, send us the check anyway.

Zip code. Our zip code is 10022. A few blocks down is 10021. This is the new Amarian. If it is believe to the new Amarian. If it is the new Amarian is the new Amarian. If it is the new Amarian is the new Amarian.

Address. This is our address, as any fool can plainly see; it is the

A few blocks down is 10021. This is the new American life-style. You no longer live or work in a neighborhood or area but in zip codes. Q: Whereabouts do you work? A: My office is located in 10022. Q: Ah, yes, I used to work there. Good Chinese restaurants.

Canadians, Mexicans, etc.
Okay, it just costs more to get the magazine to Canada, Mexico, etc.
We should pay the difference ourselves? Are you nuts? You'r e sitting up there on some tundra or down there afraid to even drink your own water and you want us to pay the difference? Wake uo!

Name, address, city. If you forget to fill out this part, but include your check or money order, we have a private investigator go to your city and find your address. If you believe that, then you should take the fifty-year subscription.

Here's my check or money order, payable to National Lampoon, Dept. HM61. 535 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10022.

3 — year subscription—524.95 (basic subscription price; a saving of $47.05 over single-copy purchase).

2 — year subscription—517.95 (basic subscription price; a saving of $30.05 over single-copy purchases).

1 — year subscription—511.95 (basic subscription price; a saving of $12.05 over single-copy purchases).

For each year add $3.00 for Canada and Mexico, $5.00 for other foreign countries. All checks must be payable within continental U.S. and Canada.

Name

Address.

If the coupon that should be in the adjoining space is torn out, send your money and all pertinent subscription information to: National Lampoon, Dept. HM681 635 Madison Avenue
New York, N.Y. 10022

COLLECTOR'S ITEMS

#1/APRIL 1977: Sorry - SOLD OUT!

#2/MAY 1977: Russian astronauts, "Roger" the paranoid puppet, "Conquering Armies," the ultimate rock festival, and more. ($4.00)

#3/JUNE 1977: Macedo's "Rockblitz," the highly praised "Shells," the beginning of Davis's "World Apart," Moebius, Corben, Bode, more, ($3.00)

#4/JULY 1977: Lots of Moebius: "Arzach," plus part one of "The Long Tomorrow"; also the final installment of "Sungot." ($3.00)

#5/AUGUST 1977: The saga of "Polonius" begins, "The Long Tomorrow" concludes, and "World Apart" and "Den" continue. ($3.00)

#6/SEPTEMBER 1977: Roger Zelazny has a short story and Moebius, a space opera; plus more "World Apart," "Den," and "Polonius." ($3.00)

#7/OCTOBER 1977: Fiction by Theodore Sturgeon, Moebius's "Airtight Garage," "Den" and "Polonius" back again, yet more. ($3.00)

#8/NOVEMBER 1977: New Harlan Ellison fiction, nine color pages by Moebius and Rimbaud, conclusions for "Polonius" and "World Apart," ($3.00)

"Polonius" and "World Apart." ($3.00)

#9/DECEMBER 1977: Extra pages for the complete
"Vuzz" by Druillet. "Fortune's Fool" by Chaykin and Wein, plus full-color contributions from Corben, Macedo.

Claveloux, and Moebius. ($3.00)

#10/JANUARY 1978: Morrow illustrates Zelazny, Lob and Pichard update Ulysses, "Conquering Armies" concludes, "Den" continues. ($3.00)

#11/FEBRUARY 1978: New adventures of "Barbarella," wraparound cover and center spread by Nino, plus Moebius, Corben, et al. ($3.00)

#12/MARCH 1978: Swashbuckling "Orion" makes a debut courtesy of Gray Morrow; and there's more "Barbarella," more "Urm," and yet more "Den." ($3.00)

#13/APRIL 1978: Our first anniversary issue! A thirty-page insert from "Paradise 9," and "Barbarella" gives birth, while "Den" wraps it up. ($3.00)

#14/MAY 1978: "Urm the Mad" waves bye-bye, but "Orion" and "Barbarella" continue, and Alex Nino tips his hat. ($3.00)

#15/JUNE 1978: Corben introduces Shahrazad. Sturgeon's classic "More Than Human" is illustrated, more "Barbarella," and the origins of "Heilman." ($3.00)

#16/JULY 1978: A happy ending for "Barbarella," a sad ending for "1996," the resumption of Druillet's "Gail," and yet more "Heilman," "Orion," "More Than Human," and Corben's "Arabian Nights." ($3.00)

#17/AUGUST 1978: Sorry - SOLD OUT!

#18/SEPTEMBER 1978: Corben's "Sindbad," Moebius's Major, "Heilman," "Orion," "Lone Sloane on Gail," and Harlan Ellison too. ($3.00)

#19/OCTOBER 1978: "Exterminator 17," Ellison's illustrated "Glass Goblin," the debut of McKie's "So Beautiful and So Dangerous," plus the usual, ($3,00)

#20/NOVEMBER 1978: Twenty pages of the Delany/ Chaykin "Empire," more "Sindbad," "Exterminator," Major Grubert, "Heilman" 's final rebirth, more. ($3.00)

#21/DECEMBER 1978: The stocking's full with "Orion," Kirchner's "Tarot," and twelve beautiful pages of Moebius. ($3.00)

#22/JANUARY 1979: Trina makes her debut here, and Druillet concludes "Gail," plus McKie and Corben. How much can you take? ($3.00)

#23/FEBRUARY 1979: "Galactic Geographic," "Starcrown," Corben's "Sindbad," McKie's "So Beautiful and So Dangerous," plus Moebius, Bilal, and Macedo. ($3.00)

#24/MARCH 1979: Twenty pages of Chaykin illustrating Bester's "The Stars My Destination," "Starcrown" II, and Ellison's late show. ($3.00)

#25/APRIL 1979: Our second birthday bash, with Chaykin and Wein's "Gideon Faust," the "Alien" portfolio, and Val Mayerik's "Time Out." And much more. ($3.00)

#26/MAY 1979: It's all-American (except for Druillet's "Dancin'" and a Proust joke): fifteen entries including Corben, Morrow, the illustrated "Alien." ($3.00)

#27/JUNE 1979: Fifty-four pages of "Captain Future," plus more illustrated "Alien," and the final episode of "So Beautiful and So Dangerous." ($3.00)

#28/JULY 1979: Bode's "Zooks" premieres, Corben's "Sindbad" concludes, Morrow and Moebius continue, Mike

Hinge debuts ($3.00)

#29/AUGUST 1979: Caza steals the show with "New Ark City," plus Mayerik, Suydam, "Galactic Geographic," Bodė, more. ($3.00)

#30/SEPTEMBER 1979: "Elric," "Buck Rogers," a lizard named "Elvis," and "Little Red V-3," alongside Montellier and Moebius. ($3.00)

#31/OCTOBER 1979: Halloween strikes with a tribute to H. P. Lovecraft, with Moebius, Breccia, Druillet, Suydam, others. ($3.00)

#32/NOVEMBER 1979: Let us give thanks for Corben's "Rowlf," Bodé's "Zooks," Brunner's "Elric," Chaykin's "The Stars My Destination," Moebius, and more. ($3.00)

#33/DECEMBER 1979: A Christmas package from Caza, Corben, Kofoed, Suydam, Stiles, Trina, Moebius, and Ellison, plus "Gnomes" and "Giants." ($3.00)

#34/JANUARY 1980: A new year — a new decade — begins with a new look for HM with the debut of four next columnists, new artists Neal McPheeters and Dan Steffan, the conclusion of Corben's "Rowlf," and much more! (53.00)

#35/FEBRUARY 1980: An eerie Couratin cover adorns this winter issue. Corben's "The Beast of Wolfton" begins, McKie experiments with the Air Pump, and we join Matt Howarth on a crazed acid trip. ($3.00)

#36/MARCH 1980: Why did "The Crevasse" take Jeannette? For the answer read the Schuiten Bros, strip! Plus: Corben, Matena, Moebius, and Lee Marrs's "Good Vibrations" ($3.00)

#37/APRIL 1980: Our third anniversary issue — 32 pages of "Champakou" in living color, the final installment of Moebius's "Airtight Garage," plus Caza, Bilal, Howarth, Corben, Bodé — and more! ($3.00)

#38/MAY 1980: Does the Supreme Alchemist exist? Will Axle ever find out? Will "Champakou" reach the Doll of Jade? Will Joe strike out with the allen Marilyn, too? Take a look. We'll never tell. ($3.00)

#39/JUNE 1980: "Champakou" meets his fate, while "Captain Sternn" saves the day. And in their revenge, the Flying Wallendas vs. the Earth! ($3.00)

#40/JULY 1980: "The Alchemist Supreme" continues with Axle learning the truth about his sidekick Musky. Bilal's "Progress!" begins, and Moebius returns with "Shore Leave." ($3.00)

#41/AUGUST 1980: Druillet returns with the first installment of "Salammbo" while Moebius concludes "Shore Leave" (and is interviewed). Bilal continues "Progress!" ($2.00).

#42/SEPTEMBER 1980: "The Alchemist Supreme" concludes while Bilai's "Progress!" picks up steam. Enti-Colon, Paul Kirchner, and Leo Duranona all contribute nifty shorts, while "Rock Opera" gets stranger yet. ($3.00)

#43/OCTOBER 1980: Our Special Rock Issue, packed with goodies by McKie, Moebius, Voss, Spain, Druillet, Yeates, Hé, Howarth, Kierkegaard, Jr., Colon, and Matena, and not to be missed! ($3.00)

#44/NOVEMBER 1980; With the Shogun spirit ablaze, this issue's cover, by Hajime Sorayama, is definitely in its element. Inside we give you some lovely Claveloux, Moebius, Kaluta, Springett, and Bilal. ($3.00)

#45/DECEMBER 1980: Premiering Corben's illustrated "Bloodstar," Crepax's "Valentina," and Godard and Ribera's "What Is Reality, Papa?" Plus "The Cutter of the Fog," "Rock Opera," and Moebius! ($3.00)

#46/JANUARY 1981: Jeronaton returns with "Woman." Don Wood makes his HM debut with "Bang, Hah." Plus more Corben, Godard and Ribera, Mezieres, and "Rock Opera." Moebius tells us "There Is a Prince Charming on Phenixon!" Don't mis sit (§3.00)

#47/FEBRUARY 1981: William S. Burroughs discusses "Civilian Defense," william S. Burroughs discusses "Civilian Defense," will effick Veitch shares with us his experiences at this year's Luca fest. "The Horny Goof," an inimitable Moeblus character, gets himself in and outta trouble, while "Bloodstar," "What Is Reality, Papa?" "Salammbo," and "Rock Opera" continue. Plus: Special added attraction! Pages from Jeff Jones's new book. Yesterday's Lilv. and an interview with the man himself. Ah. Magic. ($3.00)

#48/MARCH 1981: "Tex Arcana," John Findley's epic Western, begins. "What Is Reality, Papa?" and "The Ambassador of the Shadows" continue. And Druillet's interpretation of Flaubert's classic Salammbo comes to an end. Even with all of that going on, we still have room for Kierkegaard, Howarth, and Corben's "Bloodstar," Plus. Harlan Ellison's ever timely essay on violence in America. ($3.00)

#49/APRIL 1981:"Art and the Nazis,"Corben's "Bloodstar," Gimenez's "Good-bye, Soldier!," Harry North's "Stories from London," and an interview with Julio Ribera. Di'n't think we could do it in one shot, did ya? ($3.00)

www.maf 1981: The premieres of Chaykin's "Cody Starbuck" and Bilal's "The Immortals' Fete"! Plus: Suydam's "The Toll Bridge" and a William S. Burroughs piece on immortality. ($3.00)

Dept. HM 6-81 635 Madison Avenue New York, N.Y. 10022

Please send me the following:

No. of copies	Issue	Price
	May 1977	$4.00
	June 1977	$3.00
-	July 1977	$3.00
	Aug. 1977	$3.00
	Sept. 1977	$3.00
	Oct. 1977	$3.00
	Nov. 1977	$3.00
	Dec. 1977	$3.00
	Jan. 1978	$3.00
	Feb. 1978	$3.00
	Mar. 1978	$3.00
	Apr. 1978	$3.00
	May 1978	$3.00
	June 1978	$3.00
	July 1978	$3.00
	Sept. 1978	$3.00
	Oct. 1978	$3.00
	Nov. 1978	$3.00
	Dec. 1978	$3.00
	Jan. 1979	$3.00
	Feb. 1979	$3.00
	Mar. 1979	$3.00
	Apr. 1979	$3.00
	May 1979	$3.00
	May 1979	$3.00

June 1979

Please send me the following: No. of copies Issue

> July 1979 $3.00 Aug. 1979 $3.00 Sept. 1979 $3.00 Oct. 1979 $3.00 Nov. 1979 $3.00 Dec. 1979 $3.00 Jan. 1980 $3.00 Feb. 1980 $3.00 Mar. 1980 $3.00 Apr. 1980 $3.00 May 1980 $3.00 June 1980 $3.00 July 1980 $3.00 Aug. 1980 $3.00 Sent 1980 $3.00 Oct 1980 $3.00 Nov. 1980 $3.00 Dec. 1980 $3.00 Jan. 1981 $3.00 Feb. 1981 $3.00 Mar. 1981 $3.00 Apr. 1981 $3.00 May 1981 $3.00 Binder $5.50 Rinder with $26 plus $1

> > 1978 issues

Binder with

1979 issues

Binder with 1980 issues postage and nandling

$26 plus $1

postage and handling $26 plus $1

postage and handling

Price

I've enclosed a total of $ _

$3.00

This amount covers purchase plus shipping and handling. All issues are mailed in protective covering.

Name Address City Zip_

If you do not wish to cut the coupon in this ad, but do wish to order, please print or type all necessary information and enclose it with a check or money order.

Trust, Costello

I'm talking about heroes (calebyyr rock), and I'm talking about now, so I'm talking about Elvis Costello, for one Elvis in the 1980s; the angry man's Elviss, a sublimely gutsy Elvis, man's Elviss, a sublimely gutsy Elvis, The vicious street stalker of his prethe vicious street stalker of his premiere-album days now turns toward worldweariness and romantic grumble on Trust (ins latest disc) and in ble on Trust (ins latest disc) and in concert (at the NYC Palladium in Service). But here's no loss of life show). But here's no loss of life show). But here's no loss of life show, and the show in the life s life live. Though it's not the ideal exchange, this Elvis's proto-hip angry change, this Elvis's proto-hip angry

change, this Elvis's proto-hip angry change of the change of the change of the change of the change determined the change of the change of

NewMusics

lossa recent press yapping about a so-called psychedelic revival. Yawn. Once again small minds force-fit past terminologies into unaccommodating present definitions. Pity the Psychedelic Furs—neither sixties revivalists nor particularly hirsute—who found themselves instantly torpedoed by geriatric geeks for failing at something they never attempted. "People just don't understand irony," said Devo's Mark Mothersbaugh: especially if you toy with the holy meat of history.

Transcendence of form, sonic adventurism, and awe-fed innocence characterized the psychedelic sound-and precious little of this can be found in stuff tagged with the label today. Take Liverpudlians Echo and the Bunnymen and The Teardrop Explodes, both hung with the neopsychedelic albatross by virtue of loony names and atmospherically interesting early singles. Teardrop's debut LP, Kilimanjaro (Mercury), reveals overt lust for mainstream success and disappointingly little of the hypnotic ethereality of their first single. 1979's "Sleeping Gas." And just listen to the recut album version: a pair of obtrusive, mood-trivializing, tinny trumpets completely destroys the original's trancelike subtlety. Structural conservatism and singer-lyricist Julian Cope's disingenuous naivete further bely any claims to psychedelia. Ditto the Bunnymen, whose preoccupations in no way merit the inane Doors comparison they've repeatedly attracted. (While singer lan McCulloch does conjure up Morrison resonances, the band more closely resembles the Seeds-check out their "Do It Clean.") But the value of otsa recent press yapping about a Crocodiles (Sire) lies not in an adolesalled psychedelic revival. Yawn. cent nostalgia reflex but in the pase again small minds force-fit past sionate evocation of an angered, dissinologies into unaccommodating illusioned romanticism. Definitely a ent definitions. Pity the Psychepost-seventies sensibility; not at all a psychedelic touchstone.

Ireland's U2 moves in a transcendental direction, but a paucity of real ambition undercuts the success of their debut Boy (Island). An authentically adventurous player in his use of harmonics and sense of melody, guitarist The Edge (the guy's name, I swear) emerges as the band's lone point of interest. Narrowness of vision makes Boy merely good while Colin Newman's sonic omnivorousness makes his solo debut disc, A-Z (import Beggars Banquet), extraordinary. Building on Syd Barrett-era Pink Floyd and Tiger Mountain-era Eno, Wire alumnus Newman constructs superior modern psychedelia from a well-crafted architectonic arrangement of texture and

If the spirit of '67 lives on—not through necrophilia, exhumation, or cloning but with transplantation and lots of healthy procreation—then it resides in the Urban Verbs' second, Early Damage (Warner Bros.). The most successful marriage to date of a state-of-the-art, eightles technological sensibility with the true psychedelic essence, it effortlessly treads the fine line between experimentalism and accessibility without missing a step. Early Damage is a psychedelic album; the Verbs are not a "psychedelic band." The end desecrates the means.

- Lou Stathis

Raw #2, edited by Art Spiegelman and Francoise Mouly

Saw Books, 27 Greene Street, New York City 10013

Not counting the rag currently smudging your greasy fingers, Raw is the only American graphic magazine with guise, balls, and vision. Raw is to HM wart HM is on that bursile usebarmensch tripe printed on recycled Charmin that used to cost a dime. Raw, however, is well worth the bucks (four, by hand; five, by post). Good merewy paper from so, and explicitly single format, and —almost forgot—more wisted brilliance per page than anything this side of Soldier of Fortune. The book's two outstanding inserts, Mark Beyer's 'City of Terror' bubblegum cards (urban paranoia a la Mars Attacks! with real prink-cardboard guml), and the first chapter of editor's pleagelman's magrum rodent opus, "Waus." As the desperate, hilanious intersection of art, underground comics, and the insane mind, Raw well-more the Beanan vears.

-Lou Stathis

Cities of the Red Night, by William S. Burroughs

Holt. Rinehart & Winston, 1981, $14.95

Time warps fast when you're having fun in these crimson cities. William S. Burroughs can't help it, like the rest of his citizens who populate his latest, most linear novel, Cities of the Red Night. It's life in a fever dream: the swelling and the shrinking of settings and time, where the strange is normalcy, as the mondo bizarro radiates an orgasmic glow. Against our will, we join the addict crew here; they sail across interconnected yet wildly diverse landscapes of time and space and we read on. A comparison: Graham Greene's final opium dream? No, that isn't fair to either great writer. But indeed, in the words of Hassan i Sabbah, "Nothing is true. Everything is permitted." These are Burroughs's watchwords, and the eternal guidelines of this intriguing novel. Knock 'em dead, you ol' hashish assassin.

-Elliot Murphy

To re-dress ancient myth in modern clothes is a simple task; it's merely a matter of draping the former with a modern cloak. But to really toy with the myth, to somehow evolve from it something new, is considerably more difficult. That task director George Romero takes upon himself in the creation of Knightriders—a variation of the King Arthur tale seen in a contemporary light. Romero casts his characters as a crew of Renaissance fair-givers with a twist-not only do they hold the month-long medieval-like extravaganza country-wide, but they joust on motorcycles as well. Within this framework, Romero portrays Arthur as a fatally flawed fellow, while the Black Knight is not such a bad guy. And Lancelot is no more a hero than the next beautiful but dumb blond boy. Romero's horrific tendencies, displayed in the most pungent terms in Night of the Living Dead and Dawn of the Dead, are clearly underplayed here. But he still awakens enough sense of apprehension to keep the film moving and the story more than a 1980s frolic around the Round Table.

-Brad Balfour

Devoutly

ransformations

Pinocchio (1940): In what is probably the scariest, most pri- Honorable Mention: The Bed-sitting-room (1969), in which ing, cigar smoking, and candy bingeing by undergoing a pro- any kind. Radiation can do that. tracted torturous transformation into a donkey. The movie itself remains Disney's apogee, no strings attached.

Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde (1922): John Barrymore's wild-eyed evolution into literature's most demented schizo, accomplished virtually without makeup or camera tricks, is the most unforgettably physical in the genre. Later variations included Dr. Jekyll and Sister Hyde (1972), in which actor Ralph Bates turns into actress Martine Beswick (a neat trick that we never got to see on U.S. screens, courtesy of the MPAA), and The Two Faces of Dr. Jekyll (1961), remembered as the film in which Jekyll became Hyde by turning his back and-quick! —pulling his beard off.

Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde (1932): Rouben Mamoulian's brilliant use of sounds recorded backward and lighting changes to reveal already applied makeup set a standard for sheer ingenuity that, like the film itself, is hard to surpass even today. Fredric March's unrestrained, toothsome portrayal of a more simian Hyde than most seems almost contemporary in its sadistic hysteria.

The Wolf Man (1941-1948): The harried, guilt-ridden countenance of Lon Chaney, Jr., was seen in a limited transformation only at the end of the original Universal picture. It wasn't until the sequel, Frankenstein Meets the Wolf Man (and the best-directed film of the 1940s series by the underappreciated Roy William Neill), that makeup artist Jack Pierce was able to fully lap-dissolve all that yak hair from human to werewolf-a resonant image that has haunted the dreams of generations of moviegoers and "Shock Theater" fans.

mal transformation scene ever, Pinocch's delinquent pal Ralph Richardson is atomically mutated into a bed-sitting-Lampwick is punished for the evils of poolroom hooky play- room entirely without the aid of special effects or opticals of

> -Joe Dante (director of Piranha and The Howling)

Dante himself has a few transformations happening in his latest film, The Howling. Witness the hairy scene above.

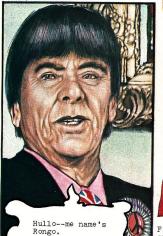

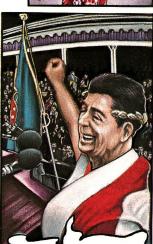

We were caught in a frantic race against time-to adjust his personality before his first major personal conference.

The slightest alteration in his circuitry produced startling transformations--

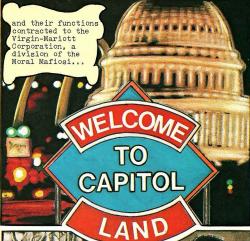

Finally, we found a mode approved by our masters at the Moral Mafiosi--

I, Romulus, president of the American Empire, hereby decree that my horse, Trigger, be made a senator. Furthermore-

All things considered, the press conference went well--wasteful agencies such as the State and Justice departments were eliminated--

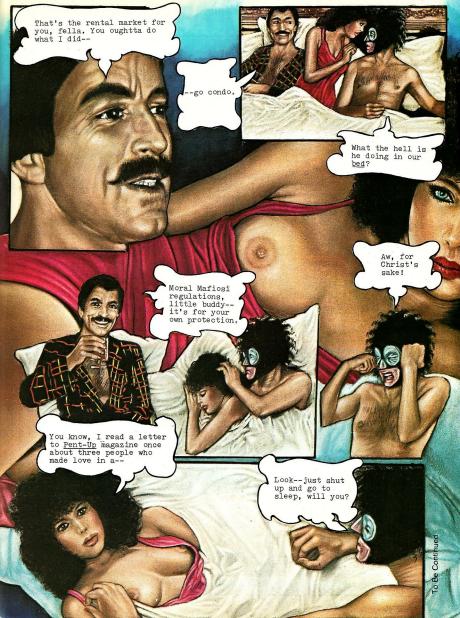

the bus

PAUL KIRCHNER ©

MEXT MONTH

What you saw of Outland in this issue was just a taste of what Steranko has in store for you. Come July, HM will begin a 44-page illustrated serialization of this new science-fiction thriller. We think it's a bit like High Noon in space. See what you think!

Also, the return of two long-lost buddies of ours: Druillet and Picotto's Firaz, and Thomas's Elvis. Guys! We hardly knew ye!

Corben's Bloodstar ends, but his interview with Brad Balfour continues.

Plus: Bilal's The Immortals' Fete and Findley's Tex Arcana.

What a sensational way to start the summer!

National Lampoon Battles Inflation by Giving You More Movies for Your Money!

- Lots of complete films for the price of one!
- Over one hundred (100) actors, including: Big stars! Beloved comedians! Brilliant newcomers!
- Five (5) zany National Lampoon writers!
- Two (2) union directors!
- Thousands (1000s) of hilarious jokes! Dark comedy bits!
   Satirical barbs! Sexy scenes! Clever plot twists!
   Dirty language!

Our first film since Animal House

