Make A Dumb Wish Foundation™

As a MAD reader since I was six and a subscriber thereafter, I would like to make a request to the Make A Dumb Wish Foundation™ and have my letter printed in MAD before the year is over. I'd like very much to keep my dubious record going. If you would check your archives, I have been a regular letter writer — actually, every 14 years. MAD has printed my letters in #183 (June 1976), #296 (July 1990) and an honorable mention in #332 (December 1994)! If you could print this letter, I won't have to bug you guys until 2018!

Val Balagot, Antelope, CA

Shallow Val—Thank you for writing to the Make A Dumb Wish Foundation™. Your tale checks out, so we'll gladly make your dumb wish come true! In fact, if we had the space, we'd print your letter a dozen times, so we wouldn't have to hear from you again in our lifetime! —Ed.

The Big Easel

I made Alfred out of fusion beads while sitting at the table doing nothing. It really wasn't that exciting. You've probably gotten other fusion bead entries with more exciting tales, but mine, hopefully, will bring a tear to your eye.

Jessica Miller, Oceanside, CA

Jess Say No — Yes, your tale did bring a tear to our eye. It's one we've heard far too often: a troubled teen, bored with every thing and looking for an escape, turns to a life of fusion beads. We can't stress this enough: arts and crafts are never the answer! We pray we've gotten through to you, before you do something really rash, like buy a glue gun! —Ed.

Readers: If you've designed Alfred's image using clever items around the house, send in the pictures to: Amy "The Big Easel" c/o MAD Magazine, 1700 Broadway, New York, NY 10019.

FROM AD TO WORSE

Ah, New York — if you can make it here, you'll make it anywhere (as 50 Cent says in his song "In Da Club") — and this is certainly true of our beloved Spy characters. As part of Mountain Dew's advertising campaign, a giant Spy Vs. Spy billboard (see below) is on display in New York's Times Square. If you're "in da 'hood" come out and see it!

MAD CELEBRITY SNAPS

J.J. Abrams, creator of Alias and Lost, loved our satire

"Ailing-Us" (MAD #441) so much that he bought Hermann Mejia's original art for the article! And if that wasn't exciting enough, J.J. and his son Henry actually stopped by the MAD office to pick up the artwork! Rumor has it Hermann is spending all the proceeds on wooing the lovely Jennifer Garner!

(L - R) Assistant Art Director Patty Dwyer, J.J. Abrams, Henry (on his shoulders) and Production Artist Doug Thomson. Note to nit-picky readers: there is no black shirt and khaki uniform at MAD, it is purely a dorky coincidence!

NIP/SCHMUCK

I received the silly renewal notice and I just had to call to renew my subscription, which is actually under my wife's name! The reason that it is under her name is because my patients may think I am mad and get some silly idea not to book their (plastic) surgery. Your obnoxious magazine seems to disappear from my office within a week of arrival and I am thinking of getting a closed circuit camera or a guard dog to nail the person responsible. I must admit that I read the magazine before any of my medical journals. Now, regarding the renewal, I tried to renew the magazine for the next twenty years and I was told that I can only do a maximum of three years. What is going on? Even the results of my surgeries last more than three years!

Hootan Daneshmand, MD
Silhouette Plastic Surgery Institute
Irvine, CA

Hootie — We're sorry that you were unable to renew for more than three years. However, we can bypass the whole subscription department and work out a barter of some sort. We will give you a twenty-year subscription if you will throw a few, shall we say, "professional favors" our way. For as long as we've known him, John Caldwell has been whining about wanting calf implants; Rick Tulka has always been insecure about his "back fat" and finally, Arie Kaplan keeps bitching that he won't be happy until he's sporting a set of 36DDs. What do you say, Hootie-Doo? You scratch our back fat and we'll scratch yours! —Ed.

WHICH "TRICKY" WHITE HOUSE OCCUPANT HAS SEEN HIS POLITICAL CLOUT RISING?

HERE WE GO WITH ANOTHER RIDICULOUS FOLDING PAGE

THE GREATEST STORY EVER FOLD-IN

Look to the left for a special self-deprecating fold-in by MAD's own fold-in king, Al Jaffee, from the new book, The Daily Show with Jon Stewart Presents America (The Book): A Citizen's Guide to Democracy Inaction. The book seems to be selling well, despite Al's contribution!

AWARD TO THE WISE-ASSES

It was a MAD-filled weekend at this year's National Cartoonist Society Reuben awards Ceremony held in Kansas City, MO. Big winners included MAD artists Hermann Mejia (Best Magazine Illustration) and Tom Richmond (Best Advertising Art). Also on hand was legendary MAD artist and featured speaker, Mort Drucker! Our sincerest congratulations to Tom and Hermann and our deepest apologies to the tuxedo rental company!

WHATEVER FLOATS YOUR VOTE

Did you buy your Monroe Fan Club ballots from Jeb Bush? These are even more unfair than those used in the 2000 election! I clearly nominated myself in MAD #441. I even wrote "Vote Driver in '04!" But you people couldn't even put my name on the ballot? There is even an empty space right below Ken McClelland's name where mine would fit! I am very worried that the American people will not be able to vote for their leader fairly. That's why I demand a recall and a recount and a reprint with ballots with my name on it!

Robert Driver, Elkins Park, PA

Drunk Driver — You make a good point and may have some stake in this Presidency. Not since Al Gore has an election been so unfairly stolen from a candidate. So, like Al, we took your case all the way to the Supreme Court. Unfortunately, again, like Al, they didn't give a hot-buttered chad about your beef! Unlike Al, we suggest you quit your bitching, take the decision like a man and look below to see who your fairly elected President is! —Ed.

P.S. It's not all bad news, though! As a consolation, we would like to appoint you the President-for-life of the Ken McClelland Fan Club. Bango, Robbie! —Ed.

MOCK THE VOTE

Back in MAD #444 we asked readers to vote for the next President of the Monroe Fan Club. We're pleased to announce that the winner, by an overwhelming majority, is none other than Darryl Gonzalez of Severn, MD! In a stunning (some may say suspicious) coincidence, we discovered that lame-duck President Ken McClelland is related by marriage to Darryl! Below is photo documentation of Ken passing the torch to new President Darryl. We are sure Ken is hugely relieved to have the burden of the office lifted from his shoulders, however, we are not going to rule out the return of McClelland in 2008!!

If you go to a newsstand and see another MAD cover that doesn't look like the one you're holding in your hand — don't go crazy! In a cold, calculating, sinister move to suck those last few pennies left in your wallet after the holidays, this month's MAD features two different covers! Sadly, the one you didn't buy is destined to become a valuable collector's item. So we urge you to run out to your newsstand and buy that other issue!

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE NEW Seinfeld DVD

Special feature documenting the contentious negotiations to get Jason Alexander, Michael Richards and Julia Louis-Dreyfus to appear on one of the DVD's special features.

Foreign languages option lets you hear Jerry Stiller screaming in Spanish, French and even Korean.

90% of a disinterested Julia Louis-Dreyfus' audio commentary is just her saying "yada yada yada."

Hidden camera footage of the real "Soup Nazi" dumping a pot of scalding hot Mulligatawny on Seinfeld's head when asked if he wanted to participate in the DVD.

Five-hour blooper reel of Teamsters using the "Jaws of Life" to remove the guy who played Newman from the craft service table.

Explicit backstage footage of Seinfeld with Larry David — not that there's anything wrong with that!

A JAILHOUSE LETTER from Martha Stewart

Dear Inexplicable Supporters,

I have been told that more than 2.5 million of you have visited marthaspins.com since last Friday, when I self-surrendered in the twinkling mist of the pre-dawn darkness where the dappled sunlight lightly kisses the receding shroud of night. Then, the screws hustled me into the joint.

Unfortunately, 2.4 million of you were under the mistaken impression that you could download a QuickTime film of my strip search, the one where they made me get naked, squat over a mirror, and cough. Talk about your insider information! Anyway, you sickos will have to click elsewhere.

For now, all I can say is thank you for the concern and good wishes expressed in the thousands of emails you have recently sent to this website. There are too many to enumerate now. But I was particularly moved by one fan who wrote all the way from Nigeria, offering to share a portion of his $8.6 million fortune, which is currently tied up in red tape at the bank. Even more heartwarming, he made this offer despite suffering from aggressive cancer, and during his nation's civil war. To Mr. Nbutu Oye Mgili, I very much look forward to doing business with you after I am released. I'm sure our financial agreement will work out better for me than the previous one that landed me behind bars.

Others have sent me gifts and money. Although these gestures are deeply appreciated, they are not permitted in prison, and must be returned. Only small, everyday items are allowed. I will be grateful for anyone who takes the time to send me such room-freshening knickknacks as a hairbrush with a sharp, removable handle, a coiled length of rubber tubing, or 10,000 cartons of Newports.

Together, your goodwill will get me through what I like to call "this chapter in my life," but the district attorney prefers to call a "felony fraud conviction." You say "organically-grown plum tomato," I say "organically-grown plum to-mah-to." Just know that I will walk out of this concrete camp with my snoot held high, and begin condescending again before very long.

VIDEO GAME REVIEW

DA:ATD is not your typical point-and-shoot. The story begins when the main villain ("Col. Mainvillain") kidnaps the Deputy Undersecretary of Agriculture of an unspecified country (although it's obviously Luxembourg). You play the role of ZonDox, a cyborg bounty hunter from the future (June, 2007, to be precise) assigned to rescue the Undersecretary. According to the game manual, ZonDox "does not possess courage, strength, speed or intelligence, but he makes up for it with several shoulder-mounted grenade launchers."

There isn't much variation in the first seven levels, since they all take place in laundromats, albeit laundromats in different cities. On each level, you have to contend with Col. Mainvillain's accomplice, Mr. Pookey, a sarcastic yodeling cucumber, who, for some odd reason, can only be killed with holy water. You can unlock the holy water, plus various weapons besides the grenade launchers, by going to the cabinet marked "WEAPONS" and unlocking it with the key marked "WEAPONS CABINET KEY."

Levels 8-12 deviate wildly from the rest of the game, in that they consist entirely of karaoke singing contests, although you still get to put the grenade launchers to good use.

We didn't get beyond level 13, where you have to solve word puzzles while racing a carjacked dragster through a minefield on the rings of Saturn. Don't pay any attention to the map in the lower left-hand corner, since it's of Hoboken, NJ, and has no relevance to the game. Maybe the inevitable sequel, Dangerous Assignment 2: The Inevitable Sequel will be better, which won't be such a tough "assignment" at all.

RATING: 2 ★★

MAGAZINE CORRECTIONS YOU MAY HAVE MISSED

In our issues published during January, February, March, April and May of this year, we made many glowing, complimentary and positive comments regarding the NBC situation comedy Friends. Upon reviewing the program on DVD, we have come to the conclusion that our assessment was inaccurate. In fact, Friends was a trite, obnoxious and overrated series that in no way deserved the accolades we bestowed on it. We regret the error.

TRYING WOLF ONCE TOO OFTEN DEPT.

In New York City's war on crime, the worst criminal offenders are pursued by the detectives of the Major Case Squad. If this show is reflective of the caliber of actual police work being performed in real life, it's a wonder any criminal is ever brought to justice...

LEWD & CRIMINAL

DISORDER: MALCONTENT

I'm Detective Games, Boring's partner. I'm a no-nonsense detective that doesn't flinch at a gory crime scene! I'm known for being sarcastic, and no matter how horrific the crime is, I can usually come up with some kind of bad pun! You might say "No bad deed goes un-pun-ished!" See what I mean? Boring and I make a good team! Boring makes wild assumptions based on the slimmest or even no clues, and I act impressed...instead of laughing hysterically in his face!

Judging by the thickness and strength of this steel door and the clear view afforded by the security cameras, I'd say the perps didn't enter this way!

I'm sure you're right about the perps not coming in through that door! My guess would be they came in through this giant hole blown in the wall!

Sniff! Yes, there is a trace of trinitrotoluene in the air! In case you didn't know it, trinitrotoluene is better known as TNT!

Is that what's in the air? Funny, I thought I sniffed some strong, A-hole know-it-all arrogance!

NO ADMITTANCE

TIFFANY'S — FIFTH AVENUE & 57TH STREET.
NO DISCOUNTS ON ANYTHING!

I found this tiny cotton thread stuck to the side of the safe!

Good! Now watch this stretch of the imagination! The thread is sturdy, so it's not from a cheap garment! It's tan, not just any tan, but the shade of tan often used in men's khaki pants!

Sturdy thread? Khaki pants? Oh brother, that's not much to go on!

"Oh brother"! Brother! Yes! That's it! Those khakis must have come from that famous men's store, Brooks Brothers!

I'm Captain James Weakened, an ambitious political animal who knows how to survive and even thrive in the judicial system! My secret? I keep my office door closed and hardly say anything! I dump on those below me and never disagree with those above me! And since I pretty much do nothing, the city paychecks keep coming in like clockwork! Hey, I'm even up for a promotion!

I need to know the name of everyone who bought khakis in this shade in the past — hmmm... 10 years!

Sorry, I don't have that, but I do have the name of the young man who stole a pair of those pants exactly ten years ago today! And here's his address!

Well, it's a slim lead at best, but I'll follow up on it!

Let's hope when we find this guy, Keith Tubbs, who stole the pants, he doesn't "pleat" the 5th! Of course I'm just speaking off the "cuff"!

BROOKS BROTHERS, NICE CLOTHES,
SOLD WITH ATTITUDE FROM THE SALES HELP

Police, ma'am! We're looking for Keith Tubbs!

That's my son, but he's working over at the Starbucks on 17th Street! Not the one near the corner of 17th Street, but the Starbucks three doors down from the one on the corner! He used to work in the other Starbucks across the street, but he asked for a transfer so he could be closer to home!

819 WEST 82ND STREET
THERE ARE NO VACANCIES HERE

My son is a good boy! Look around! In the past two months alone he's given me a brand new refrigerator, stove and just last night, a silver tea service from Tiffany's!

How does someone who's paid the minimum wage afford all these things?

He told me people are always leaving stuff behind after they have their coffee! If they don't claim it, Keith gets to bring it home!

Don't you find it odd that someone would leave a refrigerator behind?

Don't be ridiculous! They didn't leave a refrigerator behind! They left a washer/dryer behind and Keith exchanged them for the refrigerator!

I assume this is a picture of your son, but why is he in a prison uniform?

That's from a costume party he went to!

And when was he at this party?

From Halloween 2001 to May 2002!

Isn't six months a little long to be at a costume party?

He told me he stayed behind to help with the clean up! That's the kind of boy he is! Now look, I'm tired, please go now!

If you hear from your son, will you ask him to call us?

And can we ask that you not mention that his freedom is "hanging by a thread"?

I've heard that you people from the Major Case Squad are relentless in asking questions, but now I must insist — — will you please get out of my bed?

Did this guy work here?

He did, but I had to fire him! He was so dumb he didn't know the difference between a Cubano-Delotta-Mocha-Capresso and a Frappa-Delotta-Mocha-Capresso!

He was a jerk! They're exactly the same, except the Frappa-Delotta-Mocha-Capresso has a sprinkle of cinnamon! And, of course, you charge a dollar fifty more for that!

Do you know where we might find that boy, because he's in a "latte" trouble!

Do you know where he's working now? Where he hangs out? Where he lives?

No! But that's him on the end of the line over there!

Well, it looks like things are "perking" up here at the coffee shop! We just might find "grounds" for arresting Mr. Tubbs!

Leave me alone! I didn't do anything!

Then why are you running away?

Because most of the panels in this MAD spoof before this were way too static! I thought I'd help by adding some action!

TOO MANY PLACES TO DESCRIBE IN ONE TITLE

So where's your buddy?

Because you're exercising your right to remain silent?

No! I just got a new job as a street mime!

I'm not talking!

SOMEPLACE ELSE

Judging from that arm gesture he gave you, he's one rude mime! But why did you let him go free?

Because he'll lead us to his friend! Trust me!

Yes, I get it! It's a case of "mime" over matter!

Actually, it's about to be a case of me murdering my partner if she doesn't stop with those lousy puns!

I was waiting for you guys to show up!

Yep, you know that at least once every episode I need to stop by so I can show you forensic pathologists that I know even more than you do!

Oh, is that the reason? I thought you came to hang around dead people because they match your personality perfectly!

Yeah, of "corpse" that's the reason we come here!

MEDICAL EXAMINER'S OFFICE

I'm confused! The crime scene report says the guard had two broken bones and a bullet to the head! I found the bullet in his skull, but there's no sign of any broken bones!

Oh, I reset the humerus and the clavicle at the crime scene! I like to keep up my medical skills by practicing on cadavers!

I guess we could call that—

Shut up!

Well, look at this! Keith Tubbs and his accomplice! How'd you catch them, Boring?

Easy! I followed one! He led me to the other and I caught them both!

Okay, okay! I confess!

You confess? Already? But Detective Boring hasn't started badgering you yet!

I'm familiar with his badgering and it's relentless! That's why I'm confessing! His badgering is so merciless, I'm confessing, even though I'm completely innocent!

Under the law, Detectives, I have to bring in a state-appointed lawyer!

Don't say a word! Just keep your mouth shut!

That's not your client! Your clients are the two boys! You're talking to Detective Boring!

I know it's Detective Boring! That's why I told him to shut up! Once he starts jabbering, there's no stopping him!

Well, you're too late! "Accomplice Boy" already confessed, so that wraps up this case!

Come on, Games! You know how our format works! No matter who claims to be guilty, right at the very end of the show, Boring pulls some quirky twist and the person you least expect is suddenly guilty of the crime!

Oh my God! Keith's mother is here! She's the guilty one?

No, this is a real surprise ending! The villain behind this caper is a serial offender! It's the creator of the entire Lewd & Disorder franchise — Mr. Sick Wolf!

Me?! What are you talking about? I'm not guilty of anything! I'm just a guy trying to make a few bucks!

Don't you mean millions of bucks? And how do you make them? Ripping off ideas!

Stealing ideas? Never! Look, I know you think your character is a rip off of Columbo, but it's just not true!

Who said anything about ripping off Columbo? You're guilty of shamelessly ripping off yourself! Admit it! Admit it!

Okay, okay, I confess! I do rip off myself! Do you know what it's like having network executives breathing down your neck to come up with yet another hit crime drama? Do you know what it's like having only one original idea in your life... and every year having to steal an old idea and convince the networks it's a new series? Yeah, I did it! But I'd do it again! And I'll do it until I have a show on NBC every night of the week!

Nice going, dummy! I think we've seen our last paycheck now that you've exposed "The Geek that Laid Our Golden TV egg"!

ABU GHRAIB JAILHOUSE SHOCK

In Harry Potter and the Prisoner of Azkaban, Harry's Uncle Sirius is locked away and tortured in a hellish prison. Until Abu Ghraib, we never knew Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld was such a Potter fan. How else to explain the disturbing dungeons and twisted humiliation straight out of J.K. Rowling's book? As outrage over the torture spread, Rumsfeld passed the blame faster than a Quidditch ball, claiming that Lynndie England and other soldiers acted on their own. Like in some improbable fantasy tale, in the end, Rumsfeld got off scot-free, a magic act that would impress Harry himself.

JANET JACKSON'S "WARDROBE MALFUNCTION" TEMPEST IN A C-CUP

February 1, 2004: Superbowl Sunday. America tunes in for a wholesome evening of sports violence. Instead, at halftime, the country is subjected to a fleeting glimpse of a mammary gland, a glance that would shake the very foundation of our democracy. The NFL blamed CBS, CBS blamed producers MTV, MTV blamed Janet and Justin, and Janet and Justin blamed that ever-pesky "wardrobe malfunction." Inexplicably, it created the kind of panic and frenzy usually only seen in 1950s horror flicks. Ultimately, the FCC fined CBS $550,000 because, we assume, the "indecent" act created the wrong environment in which to peddle Viagra and beer.

[03] DEAN'S SCREAM

After coming in a distant third in the Iowa Caucuses, closer to the fourth-place, eyebrow-challenged Dick Gephardt than second-place pretty boy John Edwards, Democratic candidate Howard Dean concluded his "victory" rally with a freakish and disturbing yell, his now infamous, "YAAAAAAAAAAAAARRRRHHHHHH!!!!!!!" (Perhaps you saw it — the network and cable news programs repeated it about eight billion times.) The only scream that would have been more widely heard is the one that would have erupted around the world had this irrational lunatic actually been elected President.

DONALD TRUMP THE ART OF THE HEEL

He's an arrogant, self-important douche-bag — yet he's one of the biggest stars on television. His hotel and casino empire is facing bankruptcy — yet he's still perceived as a business guru. He's had two messy, obscenely expensive divorces — yet he's about to marry another amazingly attractive, albeit temporary, trophy wife. Yes, it's safe to say that Donald Trump has had a lucky and improbable life, so much so that he reminds us of another idiot savant with an annoying catchphrase.

He was a retard with a stupid haircut.
But he had a knack
for making millions.

STERIOD TESTING IN BASEBALL FIVE STRIKES AND YOU'RE OUT

Rumors of rampant steroid use in Major League Baseball are nearly as old as Mets reliever John Franco, but it wasn't until a clause in the labor contract kicked in last season that steroid users risked actual punishment. Thanks to the new "crackdown," the first time someone knowingly cheats, they'll receive counseling. (How Dr. Phil-ish!) It's not until a fifth offense that a player gets suspended for a year. And when Yankee star Gary Sheffield 'fessed up that he'd used a steroid cream from BALCO "by accident," the league told him not to worry about it. Good grief!

DAN RATHER SEE B.S. NEWS

It's rumored that an extra makeup person had to be hired just to police Dan Rather's drool the night he presented a newly uncovered memo documenting the hazy service record of George W. Bush in the National Guard. Turns out in his desperate rush to scoop the competition, Dan's fact checking consisted of shaking what soon proved to be a fake memo a few times to see if the letters fell off the page. Soon, he had to defend the fake, then defend his defense, then back off his defense, then defend his backing off of his defense and then finally admit that he had no defense. But mad props to Dan! Through it all he conducted himself with Superhuman chutzpah.

PARIS HILTON LIFESTYLE OF THE RICH AND INFAMOUS

When it comes to succeeding in "professions" that require absolutely no talent, no one tops Paris Hilton. She's made it big as a bratty, brain-dead socialite, a skanky, amateur porn star and a nasty reality TV villainess. Oh, and she gets her picture taken by paparazzi a lot. Lately, she's also guest-starred on a bunch of TV shows, usually portraying a cold-hearted, vapid, money-grubbing bitch. (Go figure.) And now with a book on the shelves, her own line of jewelry and an album in the works, can her own board game celebrating her shallow, obnoxious lifestyle be far behind?

BUSH JOKES ABOUT WMDs THIS ONE'LL KILL YA!

Over the past four years we've come to expect dumb things from President George W. Bush. But this year Dubya rose to a new low in dumbness. The scene was the annual Radio and Television Correspondents' Association dinner, an event where political fat cats and media blowhards get all dressed up and try to conceal their contempt for each other with some good-natured ribbing. Leave it to Dubya to top them all by delivering not one, but two one-liners (complete with a staged photo slide show direct from the Oval Office) joking about how (heh-heh) we never were able to find those pesky Weapons of Mass Destruction in Iraq. Ha Ha Ha! Everyone laughed! Well, not quite everyone.

BRITNEY'S FIRST WEDDING MUCH "I DO" ABOUT NOTHING

At 5:30 in the morning, a scant 5.3 hours into 2004, pop slut Britney Spears quickly solidified her place in this year's Pantheon of Dumbness. In what was reported as "a drunken stupor," she was escorted down the aisle by a hotel bellman and married to childhood pal Jason Allen Alexander in a cheesy Las Vegas ceremony. The marriage lasted over two whole days, since they tied the knot on a Saturday and couldn't get an annulment the very next day, a Sunday. Most importantly, with her baseball cap, belly shirt and garter-over-torn-jeans look, Britney serves as an inspiration to all trashy brides-to-be, who neither want to spring for the kind of designer fashions found in the more upscale bridal magazines, or remain sober until after the ceremony.

HOWARD STERN PATRON SAINT OF THE FIRST AMENDMENT

Howard Stern's radio show is a daily parade of weirdos, misfits, morons and lesbians (yeah, let's not forget those lesbians)! It's a schtick he's been doing for decades. So why were stations carrying his show suddenly pelted with a multitude of whopping FCC fines when he was just doing what he's always done? More Janet Jackson boobie backlash? His on-air campaign against Dubya? Whichever it was, Howard played it for all it was worth, and thanks to the over-reaching, self-righteous, politically corrupt FCC, he's been transformed from shock jock Stern into St. Howard, The Martyr. Weird.

LIKE A CONVERSION MADONNA GOES KOSHER

Madonna has always been a master of...of...well, nothing. So to keep from completely fading from the public eye, the Immaterial Girl keeps "reinventing" her career. This year she did it in typically "inspired" fashion by promoting herself as an enlightened, mystical Jew who follows some ancient esoterica called Kabbalah, which she became infatuated with around the time she stopped handcuffing herself to her bed on stage. In her latest concert tour, she shakes her coconuts while Hebrew letters flash across a giant screen. Oh, and she won't perform on Saturday because it's the Sabbath. Most recently, she assumed the name Esther, derived from a Persian word meaning "star." Which is really perplexing, because after all, that's one thing Madonna hasn't been in a long, long time.

PETE ROSE ODDS MAN OUT

After 14 long years of lies and denials, Pete Rose finally admitted in his book, My Prison Without Bars, that he bet on baseball while managing the Reds. (Those who bought Pete's first autobiography, in which he swore he was innocent, might want to ask for a refund.) While betting on the game was dumb and insisting that he didn't was even dumber, now comes Charlie Hustle's dumbest move of all: a weak and calculated mea culpa designed solely to get him off Bud Selig's sh*t list and into the Hall Of Fame.

SATURDAY NOT LIVE ASHLEE SIMPSON LIP SYNCHS HER CAREER

We all assumed that Jessica was "the dumb Simpson sister," but after Ashlee's disastrous appearance on Saturday Night Live, it seems the title is still up for grabs. When Ashlee got caught lip-synching she inexplicably launched into a spastic hoe-down before slinking off the stage in embarrassment. At the end of the show she continued her "professional" behavior by blaming her band. But the next day she changed her tune and like a true rocker blamed the entire screw-up on bad acid...bad acid reflux that is.

SAME SEX WEDDINGS HERE COMES THE CHIDE

What's dumber than gays who want to make themselves as miserable as heterosexuals by getting married? Well-intentioned but incompetent public officials who perform their ceremonies knowing that they're against the law? Or maybe it's homophobes who elect pandering politicians who want to pass a freakin' Constitutional amendment making their prejudice the law of the land. Bad news for them: gays are out of the closet and they're not going back in. The iconic American life the anti-gays desperately cling to has been forever changed.

KOBE BRYANT'S APOLOGY DOUBLE DRIVEL

Now that it's painfully obvious that Kobe Bryant's likeable goody-two-shoes persona is as phony as an "official memo" used by CBS News to verify a story (see #6), you'd think he'd just give it up. But nope, the L.A. Loser still wants everyone to believe he's a sensitive, wholesome fellow, which is why after sexual assault charges against him were dropped he released a convoluted mea culpa, "apologizing" for his behavior in one sentence, then proclaiming his innocence in the next. Oh well, Kobe's always been highly regarded as an offensive threat, but his defensive skills clearly need some work.

The First Draft of Kobe's Apology & What Appeared in the Actual Press Statement

First, my P.R. team wants to apologize directly to the gold-digging gutterskank involved in this felony assault.

First, I want to apologize directly to the young woman involved in this incident.

Also, my bad for "accidentally" leaking your name, hometown, psychiatric reports, testimony, and private sexual history to the press. But in basketball terms, I still have one foul left to give.

I want to apologize to her for my behavior that night, and for the consequences she has suffered in the past year.

I've needed to relieve a lot of stress because of that big bald bastard Shag, so I can only imagine the pain she has had to endure, because you can't hear the word "stop" when you've got headphones on and Terror Squad cranked up to 10. Because of that, I just assumed she wanted me to "threepeat."

Although this year has been incredibly difficult for me personally, I can only imagine the pain she has had to endure.

I also want to apologize to her parents and family members, and to my family and friends and supporters, and to the citizens of Eagle, Colorado, none of whom I've ever raped. I also apologize to whichever hotel maid had to clean off the chair.

I also want to apologize to her parents and family members, and to my family and friends and supporters, and to the citizens of Eagle, Colorado.

I also want to make it clear that I do not question the motives of this young woman, even though we ALL know exactly what kind of ho wiggles her much-visited booty up to a strange man's hotel room and acts all "ooh, ooh, I want that Kobe beef." But anyway, the main thing is that I do not question her motives.

I also want to make it clear that I do not question the motives of this young woman.

No money has been paid to this woman because, technically, I pay off my bitches in $4 million diamonds.

No money has been paid to this woman.

She has agreed that this statement will not be used against me the way I used her.

She has agreed that this statement will not be used against me in the civil case.

Although I truly believe this felony assault was consensual, I recognize now that she did not and does not view this felony assault the same way I did... it took me a while to recognize the subtle difference, but those plastic cuffs on my wrists were a major clue.

Although I truly believe this encounter between us was consensual, I recognize now that she did not and does not view this incident the same way I did.

After months of reviewing discovery, listening to her attorney, and even her testimony in person, I now understand that she felt as helpless as I did when listening to that bonehead Coach Jackson and one of his idiotic "Zen" pep talks.

After months of reviewing discovery, listening to her attorney, and even her testimony in person, I now understand how she feels that she did not consent to this encounter.

I issue this statement today fully aware that a public apology is a damn sight better than playing small forward for the prison basketball squad until 2016.

I issue this statement today fully aware that while one part of this case ends today, another remains.

I understand that a million dollars a minute is a lot to pay for sex.

I understand that the civil case against me will go forward.

That part of this case will be decided by and between the party of the first part and the party of the big part and will no longer be a financial or emotional drain on the citizens of the state of Whitey-Land.

That part of this case will be decided by and between the parties directly involved in the incident and will no longer be a financial or emotional drain on the citizens of the state of Colorado.

WILLIAM HUNG SHE BANGS, HE SUCKS

Even with the show's long tradition of promoting awful, soulless singers (Ladies and gentlemen, Mr. Clay Aiken!), we were woefully unprepared for the "success" of American Idol reject William Hung. While, at first, his mangled, atonal rendition of "She Bangs" was easy enough to laugh at, it soon became as grating as your moron friend's Simon Cowell impression. And when Hung was actually signed to a record deal, his off-key one-note act mutated into national plague from which no one had immunity. But there is hope — if we could just get the irritating putz to shut the #&@% up!

We all share the same airwaves.

Thank you for not singing.

JOHN KERRY A MAN FOR ALL POSITIONS

During this year's Presidential campaign, John Kerry was often described as a "flip-flopper," and it had nothing to do with his choice of footwear while yachting with his filthy rich wife, Teresa. The bloviating Senator from Massachusetts has a history of not giving simple responses to questions. Every answer is "nuanced." But isn't it dumb to run for President without having at least one or two core beliefs that define you? Otherwise you come off less like a strong and decisive leader and more like a tortured, self-doubting comic book character.

LINDSAY LOHAN OPPORTUNITY KNOCKERS

Lindsay Lohan had a big year, if you know what we mean. Clearly, though, the focus wasn't on Lindsay's body of work as much as her body. In the past year, her noticeable new curves started an onslaught of rumors that the then-17-year-old tart had gotten a boob job. It triggered the biggest cycle of speculation-denial-speculation-denial since Britney Spears learned to pronounce the word silicone. Paparazzi stalk her, praying for a wardrobe malfunction. She's on magazine covers, E! newsbites and a gazillion websites. Clearly, the media has a fixation bordering on the perverse with this young woman's hooters — which Lindsay might use as the springboard for her next film project.
