THE SPIDER'S WEB

c/o MARVEL COMICS GROUP 575 Madison Avenue

New York, New York 10022

TOM DEFALCO EDITOR LINDA GRANT ASSISTANT EDITOR

Dear Editor.

I can safely say that AMAZING SPIDER-MAN #227 is one of the better efforts to ssue forth from the House of Ideas in the past five or six years. In that time, I've come o expect a certain form and content to the SPIDER-MAN stories, and issue #227's story - "Goin" Straight" - would vie for my vote as a truly classic tale. And, it kept up with the SPIDER-MAN tradition of exciting stories with tricky plot-twists.

Just for once, it was nice to see Spider-Man get mad at Captain DeWolff without having something nasty happen as a result. And it was certainly nice to see someone – Captain DeWolff again – on the NYPD try to help Spider-Man. And, wonder of wonders, Peter Parker actually whizzed through an important term paper, impressing his professor in the bargain. Bravo, Rog!

The Romita Jr./Mooney at was, of course, superb. The action that leapt from this issue was of the same cloth that first made Spider-Man's rep in comics. If John or Jim ever leave, I'll be the fella in front of the office, holding my breath until they return.

All in all, another excellent effort! I remember now why I started reading the AMAZING SPIDER-MAN years ago, and have stayed with the book while others came and went: QUALITY!

At ease, soldier!

Dear Tom,

If anyone expected Spider-Man and the Black Cat to make a life together, then they weren't very familiar with SPIDER-MAN. All Peter Parker and his flashier-dressed alter ego have ever had is an inordinate amount of bad luck with women. In a way, this wouldn't be the AMAZING SPIDER-MAN if Peter were to have a problem-free relationship. Still, with the atmosphere you've been striving for, maybe a steady relationship of some sort is in order.

And now that you have a steady police person as a supporting character in Capitain Jean DeWolff, it seems only natural to develop a counterpart Mafficso. Sam Galagno seems to be just the type. It's been a long time since. Spider-Man had a regular underworld adversary, someone who isn't a costumed super-villain. Still, when the Kingpin is through dealing with Daredevil...

Mike Sopp 438 West 32nd St. Erie, PA 16508

The Kingpin has recently been appearing in SPECTACULAR SPIDER-MAN, Mike. And if the of Wall-crawler interferes too much in organized crime, we wouldn't be too surprised to find him throwing more of his weight around!

Editor:

Dang!

I am dreadfully unhappy as regards the fate of the Black Cat. Why did she have to dive off that pier? I rather liked her, and I thought you had a most interesting situation on your hands, what with the Spider-Man/Cat romance starting to bloom.

I don't know why I liked Felicia Hardy so much better than Parker's past girl friends, but I did. Maybe it was because she seemed more complex. Gwen Stacey was sweet and nice, but rather like a bowl of Cream of Rice. Mary Jane Watson had more of the old get-up-and-go, but she was more confused than complex.

Ah well. . . I don't suppose this cat has nine lives, huh? In any case, it might interest you that after a day as a Cornell grad student and, yes, as a T. A. – there's nothing finer than sitting down with a cup of tea and the latest exploits of my friend, Mr. Parker.

Ann L. Mackay 113 Cook Street Ithaca, NY 14850

Peter may give up his job as a Teaching Assistant, Ann, but the grad studies roll on. . . and we're sure he appreciates the thought.

Dear Mr. DeFalco,

While other writers at Marvel may be better known, Roger Stern's current run on AMAZING SPIDER-MAN has convinced me of what I began to suspect during his tenure on CAPTAIN AMERICA. He is Marvel's finest, most consistent writer. The clincher, of course, was AMAZING SPIDER-MAN #226-227. In this truly touching two-parter, he has continued to prove himself the master of characterization and plot development.

Issue #226 was a perfect ten in every way. The laundry room scenes were instant classics. Along with Felicia's skywriting idea, they show his talent for innovation in storytelling. Still, it was the characterization that made these issues special. I particularly liked his handling of Felicia Hardy and Jean DeWolff (hopefully, we'll be seeing more of both). And in issue #227, it was ol' Spider-Man himself who came leaping out of the book in three-dimensional glory! We've long known that Peter Parker was a man of principles, but never have those principles been so expertly shown in the contrasting of characters. Spider-Man's hopeful trust in Felicia, his hurt in being duped by her, the grimness of the battle with the mobsters, and Spider-Man's gritty determination to bring Felicia to justice had me feeling for Spider-Man as much as any classic novel would make me concerned for its protagonist. The only thing I found a bit too pat was Felicia's return to crime. I would have preferred to see her try to make more of a go of it before succumbing to temptation.

I don't mean to neglect the art in these issues. John Romita Jr. and Jim Mooney have done their usual excellent job. It has been their work, in conjunction with the writing, that has brought this book up to its current high standards. With Rog, John, and Jim on the case, I'm sure it will stuy that way!

Michael Brog Box 76 Gilman Johns Hopkins University Baltimore, MD 21218

Whew! Your letter presents me with a dilemma, Mike! if I show it to Rog, I won't be able to convince him that he really doesn't need a raise this year. (Himmr. maybe if I wear my old sweater with the holes in the elows, and ply him with sourballs?)

Dear People,

Never before have I seen a normal crimnal of Mr. Galvagno's lik actually realize that his men were no match for Spider-Man in a riair fight, and take the appropriate actions. I believe that Shiner was correct when he predicted that Galvagno will soon become the Kingpin's Tail-rhared boy."

Lynn Savage 118 Franklin Street Bristol, RI 02809

Dear Tom,

The Black Cat had better not be dead or I'll. . . I'll scream!

ААААААААННННННН!!

Seriously, though, AMAZING SPIDER-MAN #227 was fantastic. Thanks for making me glad I subscribed.

INTRODUCING. .. LOVELY LINDA GRANTI Did Ljust hear you say, "Mo?" Well, then, I guess it's time for us to get better acquainted. I'm the new assistant editor of these pages. That means I get to share an office with Two-Fisted Tom DeFaloo — and to remind him when our sourball supply needs to be replenished.

A bit of background: I was born in Yonkers, a suburb of New Yonk City. I've done quite a bit of traveling and finally decided to call 'The Big Apple' home. After rentling an apartment here with a fearless fifteen pound cat named Sasha, I found a job at Marvel Comics as secretary to the Editor-in-Chief, Jim Shooter.

One recent Friday afternoon, Tom made two momentous decisions: he quit smoking the smelly cigars he used to torture us with, and he asked me to take over as his new assistant (my predecessor, Mark Gruenwald, had been promoted to full editor). Applauding the demise of Tom's cigars, I accepted his ofter. And a new editorial team was born.

Well, I'd like to go on (and possibly discuss the great bratwurst stands of Heidelberg), but there's work to be done...

I'm sorry to have to begin this month's column with

Some time ago, Marvel Comics produced an issue of Marvel Team-Up featuring Spider-Man and The Not Ready For Prime Time Players, including John Belushi. After the book hit the stands, I received a call from John who was very excited about it. He asked if he could please stop by the office and meet us Bullpenners. Please, he said. Wow. No problem. He showed up around closing time, and the whole crew flocked around him. Quickly, he made us all feel like old friends, and apparently he admired our work as much as we admired his. He said he followed our comics and quoted scenes and developments from recent issues to prove it. Likewise, we talked about our favorite stuff on Saturday Night Live, and the whole thing degenerated into clowning around laughing, and feeling good. John even invited a bunch of us to the opening night party for the cast of Animal House. We went and had an unforgettable evening mostly because of the hour or so John spent with us introducing us around to a trainload of our favorite entertainers. What a night.

He's gone now. Even though we really had only a brief personal acquaintance with him, we'll miss him

Okay. We're going on with the regular stuff now, because we ought to

I CAN'T TELL YOU. ..

.how many letters I've gotten expressing concern that I may be pushing myself too hard. Seems I've mentioned in print several times that I've been staying up-late writing this column and the Bullpen Special column which appears in Moon Knight, Ka-Zar, and Micronauts (our Direct Sales exclusive titles, available only at comics specialty stores and selected retail outlets). Thanks for your kind concern. In fact, I am feeling a little worn down these days, but it's not from writing, folks, it's from.

CONVENTIONS

In the last five weeks I've attended conventions in Columbus, Ohio; Tampa, Florida; and Indianapolis, Indiana! I've been spending precious weekends on stages talking into microphones, answering guestions, sitting behind display tables, signing auto-graphs, being interviewed on TV and radio, meeting with Marvel artists and writers who were also quests (especially out-of-towners who seldom get into the office), looking over samples shown by folks eager to break into the business and lots more

At one con - I can't believe it, but I forget which - I even did a sketch for the amusement of the onlooking crowd, which was inked by star artist Joe Rubinstein. For your amusement, I printed it next column. Not bad, huh? See, with the right inker, (one who redraws virtually the whole picture) I could'a been a contender!

HI! I'M "BABYFACE" BOB LAYTON! I'M A WRITER AND ARTIST! MOST OPLE KNOW ME FROM MY STIN AG THE INKER OF IRON MAN! I'M HERE BECAUSE, LATELY, ON THE PAGE, BIG JIM HAS MADE SOME UNFLATTERING COMMENTS ABOUT ME! NO BIG DEAL. WE ARE OLD FRIENDS, AFTER ALL, AND T CO

Through it all, I had a great time! Like most of the people in comics, I love my work. I could attend conventions and talk about stories, art, the people in the comics, and the people behind the comics till I drop. Which may be soon. Not too soon, I hope. Tomorrow I leave for Bologna, Italy, to represent Marvel Comics at the Bologna Book Fair, a colossal gathering of publishers from all over the world - a conven tion, more or less. Am I going to enjoy it? You bet! Will I collapse from exhaustion during it? Tune in next

MEANWHILE.

I've got a lot of news and stuff to talk about, but it'll keep till next month. In the interests of fairness and at the-insistence of the Bob Layton Anti-Defamation & Disparagement Elite Revenge Squad (B.L.A.D.D.E.R.S.), I have donated the remaining space to Bob Layton, in order that he might reply to alleged allegations made concerning him in this col-

Till next time.
