Have you ever considered doing a show about the lives of such super heroes as Spider-Man? I feel they are very misunderstood by the American people. I'm sure that beneath that mask there is a good person, a kind person, a good face, someone who may have been awkward as a child and always has to check the door before he goes out to make sure it's locked, but still a good and kind person who could profit from the exposure your fine program would provide to help set the record straight and see him for the decent, loving, occasionally vegetarian person he is.

We dared them.

That's right, almost a year ago, Marvel Prez Bill Jemas and EIC Joe Quesada hatched a test for the Mighty Marvel Maestros: Since you are the best artists and writers in the biz, we challenge you to tell a story using visuals only. After all, if a picture is worth a thousand words, then a comic book filled with images only would be worth... well, more words than the Collector could count!

And if you think creating a story with no words is half the work, think again, True Believer! The writer has to craft a story using no dialogue or caption boxes to communicate information — and pencilers have to make sure their storytelling is so clear that text isn't needed to explain what's going on.

Just to show you how our Mighty Marvel Maestros met the challenge, and to give you a unique peek behind the curtain, here's the plot to the very story you just read! Just compare it to the art and you'll see how the dare was done!

The alarm clock. 5:29 A.M.

PANEL THREE

Close on Mary Jane's face. Sad.

PANEL FOUR

She's getting up, slipping off the shoulder strap as she rises.

PAGE THREE

PANEL ONE

The bedroom leading to the bathroom. The TV is on, silent, at one end of the bedroom. There's a commercial for Krell Toothpaste. We get a sense of MJ inside the bathroom, going about her business.

PANEL TWO

Same exact angle, a little later. There's a newscaster on the TV now, sitting somewhere inside a studio.

PANEL THREE

Same again, but now a reporter in the field, outside, with a hand mike, is on camera. MJ still hasn't come out.

PANEL FOUR

There's now footage of Spider-Man swinging by, in action, saving people from a terrorist-looking guy firing a huge gun.

PAGE FOUR

PANEL ONE

MJ has emerged, barely wearing a towel, and is now standing in front of the TV, watching the report on Spider-Man.

PANEL TWO

Ditto. He's carrying people out of harm's way. She hasn't moved.

PANEL THREE

We've gone to commercial. Fandangoing frankfurters onscreen. She's heading back to the bathroom.

PANEL FOUR

She's back inside the bathroom, the commercial continuing out here.

PAGE FIVE

PANEL ONE

MJ on a beach in LA, modeling a micro-small bathing suit, smiling a million-dollar smile for the photographer and his support crew.

PANEL TWO

Flashbulbs go off; she's turning it all loose.

PANEL THREE

Later. She's sitting by herself in an outdoor coffee shop. Eyes down. Lost in thought.

PANEL FOUR

Some of the crew goes by, waving. She's all smiles again, waving back.

PANEL FIVE

Same as panel three. When they're gone, the pretense falls away.

PAGE SIX

PANEL ONE

A big Hollywood premiere at the Chinese Theater. Limos. Spotlights. Fans piled behind red velvet ropes. A red carpet leading to the theater. The movie's title is RAVING MADMEN, and a banner says THE FUNNIEST MOVIE OF THE YEAR - Los Angeles Times.

PANEL TWO

A limo has pulled up and MJ is getting out. More flashbulbs, more of the million dollar smile.

PANEL THREE

She moves down the red carpet, smiling and waving, more flashbulbs.

PANEL FOUR

A raking angle past MJ in one of the theater seats, so we see those behind and beside her, laughing uproariously at the OS screen, the light from which spills onto the seats a bit. She's looking down, not smiling, not sad, just...distant.

PANEL FIVE

She emerges from the theater, smiling and waving again.

PANEL SIX

Her limo pulls away from the curb.

PAGE SEVEN

PANEL ONE

Back in her bedroom, night, she's in the bathroom, getting ready for bed. The TV is on. It looks like a hospital drama.

PANEL TWO

Same as one; there's a commercial for new improved Flense!
She's still in the bathroom, just a corner of her visible.

PANEL THREE

The repeat of the Spider-Man story comes on the TV.

PANEL FOUR

She's out again, this time in her lingerie, watching the story.

PANEL FIVE

Same as panel four.

PAGE EIGHT

PANEL ONE

She's getting into bed. On just the one side.

PANEL TWO

Lights are out. She's in bed. Sleeping on one side.

PANEL THREE

The alarm clock reads 11:30.

PANEL FOUR

On MJ, who is awake.

PANEL FIVE

The alarm clock reads 5:29.

PANEL SIX

On MJ, who is awake and looking at the other, unoccupied pillow. Missing Peter.
